70-Day Siege of Duc Co Lifted

Nothing But Good Things Happen to TV's Jim Nabors

By Joe Bean

What else can you say but schazam! Gomer Pyle is a modified Jim Nabors.

That fictional marine, whose antics with Sergeant Carter made him a national television favorite in one season, is a souped-up, let-your-hair-down version of Jim Nabors, guest star at the 13th annual Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo.

Casually dressed in a sport shirt and blue jeans, Nabors described a background ranging from his college days to television stardom.

A 1953 graduate of the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, where he received a bachelor's degree in business, he worked for the United Nations' trusteeship council in New York a year.

"I've got asthma, though," he explained with a touch of Gomer's accent, "and I had to leave New York." He went to Tennessee, where he worked for a television station, and in Chattanooga, went on the stage for the first time--in a musical production.

After he moved to California in 1959, he took a job as warehouseman for the National Broadcasting Co. "because I didn't have any money." By 1962, he was a film editor with NBC and, "just for fun, I'd go over to The Horn (Santa Monica, Calif., night club) and sing."

One night, while Jim Nabors was singing at The Horn, Andy Griffith heard him. He liked what he heard.

"The next day," Dick Linke, Nabors' personal manager relates, "I got a call from Andy. He said to come hear this fellow sing."

The next week, both Griffith and Linke were back at The Horn to hear Nabors perform "just for the fun of it."

Griffith brought Nabors to his studio to read for a part on "The Andy Griffith Show", and promptly signed him to a one-spot contract, although Nabors' only acting experience was the musical back in Chattanooga.

"But the response was so great," Linke said, "that we had to bring him back. He was in the last four shows of that (62-63) season as Gomer Pyle, a service station attendant."

With no acting experience, Nabors might have had a rough go of it among the polished professionals of Hollywood but "Andy helped me", he said with a grin. "Told me what to do and what not to do."

After the season ended, "I was given four or five offers for a starring role in my own series," Nabors said smiling proudly--but bashfully.

But what he termed the "best advice I ever got" kept him with the Andy Griffith series and propelled him into the United States Marine Corps as Gomer Pyle.

"Andy and Dick both told me to get a little more experience," Nabors said, "before going into my own show."

He did, and late in the season year, early in 1964, producer writer Aaron Ruben drafted Gomer Pyle into the Marine Corps and Jim Nabors into fame.

In its first season, 1964-65, "Gomer Pyle, USMC" zoomed into the number two spot among the ten favorite television programs across the nation and nestled solidly behind that perennial number one favorite, "Bonanza."

Two hour-long specials with Nabors in them, one over the Columbia Broadcasting System and the second over NBC, will be broadcast this fall and winter.

The early October telecast will bring together Andy Griffith, the sherrif of Mayberry--where Gomer got his "start"--his erstwhile deputy, Don Knotts, and one-time service station attendent, Jim "Gomer Pyle" Nabors.

"My Hometown," to be shown in December, will feature Nabors, Danny Thomas and Mitzi Gaynor.

Born in Sylacauga, Ala., 33 years ago, Nabors says Sikeston reminds him of his hometown. "They're both about the same size, and I like 'em both, too."

His father, a policeman, died two years ago. Nabors' mother, Mrs. Fred Nabors, still lives in Sylacauga, and so do his two sisters. One is a nurse and the other a housewife.

He lives alone in North Hollywood in a two-room house "not counting the bathrooms and stuff like that," and there's a swimming pool in the backyard.

He's never had acting lessons --and now he's a successful actor--and he's never had voice instruction -- and he's an accomplished singer.

Nabors act at the rodeo will be a combination comedy-song routine, the first time he has ever performed in a rodeo. Next week, he goes to Sidney, Iowa, for a rodeo, and then ends the month at the Indiana state fair in Indianapolis.

The past weekend he was in Greenville, S. C. where he was named honorary president of the Boys of America Home, an institution for children from broken homes.

Although Gomer's nemesis to millions of viewers is Sergeant Carter, to Gomer, at least, "he's just a nice guy in a difficult situation."

"I don't think of myself as Gomer," he said. "He's a separate character."

"In Gomer's eyes, the world's all good," Nabors observed. "As a matter of fact," he said, "Gomer is a nice, easy goin' guy and nothing but good things happen to him."

The same could be said for Jim Nabors.

No Change in Postmaster Hours

There will be no change in working hours of Postmaster Pleas Malcolm as the result of President Lyndon B. Johnson signing a bill limiting postmasters to 40-hours who have been working six days.

When asked whether it would give him a few extra hours off, Malcolm replied:

"Goodness no, I have always been on this schedule. The new ruling applies to smaller post-offices, where the postmaster also acts as clerk, and gives window service and dispatching. It will give more work to substitute postal employes."

Johnson Plans Tours

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson plans no foreign travel this year but hopes to schedule speaking tours to widely separated parts of the nation in the fall as part of a "report to the people" program.

Johnson's travel plans became the subject of renewed interest after the President confided Wednesday to a visiting delegation of travel industry executives that: "I hope before the year is out — when Congress gets out of here — I can do some traveling too."

White House officials, asked to elaborate on Johnson's plans, emphasized first that no trips to foreign countries were contemplated.

Bill D. Moyers, press secretary, was asked about Johnson's off-the-cuff remark about travel hopes. He said the President wanted to "get out and see parts of the country and see people."

From other sources, it was learned White House aides are thinking in terms of a series of speaking engagements, geographically scattered, in which Johnson would report to the people following the adjournment of Congress. It was understood there also has been tentative talk at the White House about possible presidential conferences outside Washington with such groups as farmers, students, businessmen and, perhaps, labor union leaders.

So far as a presidential vacation was concerned, informants said nothing was in prospect for 1965 apart from visits to the LBJ ranch near Johnson City, Tex.

Late in 1964, Johnson let it be

Cuban Held For Slayings In Solitary

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Cuban exile charged with piracy of the coastal freighter Seven Seas and the murder of five fellow seamen has been placed in a cell alone "for his own protection."

At no time will Roberto Ramirez, 35, be allowed to mingle with other prisoners, said Sgt. Harold Adams of the county jail, "because of the circumstances of the case."

Ramirez, a muscular, dark-skinned Cuban national, was taken to the 8x10, windowless cell Wednesday night after the federal government decided it had jurisdiction over the slayings aboard the Seven Seas.

A U.S. commissioner signed the warrant and a hearing was set for today.

The violence aboard the Seven Seas started, Ramirez reportedly told federal authorities, when the captain and the crew threatened to report him for favoring Cuban dictator Fidel Castro.

The captain was shot to death on the bridge and thrown overboard. Three crewmen were shot in their sleep, and a fourth was killed and thrown into the Atlantic Ocean off the Florida Keys.

A sixth crewman, the cook, apparently drowned when he jumped overboard to escape Ramirez.

Suffers Attack

BENTON - Jerome Blocker, Oran resident and a barber at Chaffee, suffered a slight heart attack while standing outside the Taylor barber shop in Benton, Wednesday at 10:30 a.m.

He was treated by a physician and taken by ambulance to a Cape Girardeau hospital.

Wipe Viet Cong from Jungles

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. and Vietnamese troops lifted the 70-day-old siege of Duc Co today.

Powerful units launched operations to wipe Viet Cong from the jungles flanking 40 miles of highway on which that Special Forces camp is situated near the Cambodian frontier.

In the air war, a U.S. Navy A4 Skyhawk was reported shot down by a surface-to-air missile about 50 miles south-southwest of Hanoi. A military spokesman said the downed craft was one in a formation of four of the single-seat lighweight jet bombers. The pilot was presumed killed.

The spokesman said the area was outside the range of known antiaircraft missile sites in North Viet Nam. He would not elaborate, but it was believed this indicated the missile was fired from a mobile unit.

U.S. troops of the 173rd Airborne Brigade and the 2nd Brigade of the 1st Infantry Division backed up government battalions of a relief column that reached Duc Co Wednesday night.

The Americans had flown Tuesday and Wednesday to Pleiku, 2nd Corps area headquarters in the central highlands, as the relief column neared its goal, 30 miles southwest of Pleiku.

A patrol of U.S. paratroopers made a brief contact with guerrillas today at the village of Plei Ya Ho. Shots were exchanged, but when the paratroopers charged in they found only frightened villagers. No Americans were hit during the shooting.

Progress Pleases Musial

ST LOUIS AP - Stan Musial, leader of the President's physical fitness program, says the march of American youth toward softness has been reversed.

"There's no question about it," said the former St. Louis Cardinal baseball star. "We've won an important victory with the physical fitness program."

Musial's remark came after release of a Pentagon report Wendesday which said that American boys are as healthy -or healthier-than those of 20 years ago. Despite stricter interpretation of medical requirements, the military service rejection rate for physical reasons now is 14.8 per cent compared with 15.1 per cent during World War II.

Underwood to New Madrid

John Underwood, who for the past year has been director of the Scott county welfare office, 312 Center St., has been transferred to New Madrid county, and has been replaced by Mrs. Cathleen Gipson, 722 Sikes

Mrs. Gipson has served as Mississippi county welfare director in Charleston three years.

She has lived most of her life in Sikeston. She was born in Tennessee, and moved with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Clay Driscoll, to Sikeston at the age of nine months.

She has spent her life in Sikeston with the exception of two and a half years as director of welfare in Ste. Genevieve and Franklin counties, and three years as Mississippi county director.

THIS ENTRANCE--a hole knocked out of a rear wall--was used last night in the burglary of the Marks and Stearnes Food Mart. Patrolman Alex Booth looks at the opening.

Burglar Takes $1,354 From Food Store Safe

Marks and Stearns Food Mart was broken into last night on North Main and $1,354 was taken from a safe.

Entry was made by breaking into a storeroom door at the back of the store. After entry was made into the storeroom a hole, measuring 20 inches across and 16 inches deep, was opened in a wall.

The safe was not broken into. It was either unlocked by the burglars or it was left unlocked when the store was closed last night at 8:30 p.m.

The burglary was reported to police this morning at 7:04 a.m. by Albert Marks, a store owner.

Chief of Police Arthur Bruce said that he thought the burglar was someone traveling through Sikeston.

Fingerprints were taken but nothing conclusive turned up. Authorities are investigating.

A large portion of the money taken was in small change. Several checks and money orders and possible cigarettes were also taken.

Circus Fans Elect Allen

Earl W. Allen has been elected central vice president of the Circus Fans Association of America. He was elected at the CFA's national convention in Seattle, Wash.

The CFA was organized in 1926, in Washington, D. C., by business and professional men interested in perserving the circus as an American institution. Today the organization has 5,000 members from the United States and Canada who are pledged to fight anything that fights the circus.

Titan Blast Report Held Up

SEARCY, Ark. AP -- The Air Force says it will probably be at least 10 days before it's known what caused an explosion and fire in a Titan II missile complex, killing 53 civilians.

A 30-man investigation team continued today its inspection of the blackened launch tube of America's mightiest ballistic missile -- scene of the worst tragedy in the history of America's space and missile systems.

Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert and an Arkansas congressional delegation went into the underground complex Wednesday, but returned to Washington without revealing any findings.

WASHINGTON AP -- The State Department has announced U.S. recognition of Singapore as a sovereign and independent state.

Bound over on Charge

NEW MADRID - Jenny Bell Cole waived her preliminary hearing this week in a session of magistrate court on a charge of selling intoxicating liquor without a license and was bound over to circuit court for trial with bond set at $500.

Three persons were fined for exceeding legal load limits this week. One of the three, Ralph E. Boyer paid fines of $525 and $195 for overages of 5,800 and 2,500 pounds. Two others were fined amounts less than $100.

Other violations were improper registration of a motor vehicle, Len Verner Jones, $15; driving without lights, Willie B. Hodges, Jr., $15; expired operators's license, Billy Ernest Dunn, $15; excess speed--James Lee Dester, $20; careless and imprudent driving--Louise Burks, $15; vehicle overwidth, Reelfoot Equipment Co., $15; unlicensed operator--Jack Chester Burcks and Jessie Alice Richardson, $15 each; permitting unauthorized person to drive, Bessie Alice Dobson, $15; operating vehicle while license under suspension, Ames Burleson, $15 fine, 30 days in jail, six months probation; defective brakes, Jessie Gamble, $10 fine and leave state for one year; careless and reckless driving, M. C. Crawley $15.

Father and Son Collide on Road

A father and son car-truck collision was one of three highway accidents reported by the state highway patrol.

Lloyd Keene, 44, Puxico, was traveling south on a dirt road in his 1955 Pontiac, when at a crest of a hill on a narrow road, he met a Ford pickup, driven by David Lloyd Keene, 17, his son.

Neither was injured seriously in the collision. Both were taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff, treated and released. The accident happened at 4 p.m. Wednesday six miles north of Puxico.

In an accident at 4:45 p.m. Wednesday on highway 61 at the weight station near Matthews, a 1964 Rambler, traveling south, driven by Lynn Howell, 70, Hillsdale, skidded, when an unidentified truck made a left turn, into the wrong lane into the path of a 1951 Chevrolet pickup, driven by Thurman Phillips, 51, New Madrid. Neither driver was injured. Phillips was arrested on a charge of careless and reckless driving.

Fined $50

Delora Price, Negro school teacher from Bell City, was fined $50 and costs this morning by Judge E. R. Schrader in city court for petit larceny.

She admitted stealing two packages of meat from the A and P store valued at $1.24 Saturday.

Indiana Family City Guests

"Daddy, you got caught speeding. There's a cop behind us."

That's what Suzette Qualls told her father Garvie Qualls, this morning. Chief of Police Arthur Bruce and Dr. Scott Phillips of the Jaycees turned on a red light and siren to stop the Qualls to invite them to be guests for tonight's opening performance of the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo.

Mr. and Mrs. Garvie Qualls and daughter were returning to their home in Kokomo, Ind., where he works in a Continental Steel plant. They had veen vacationing in Hardy, Ark.

The Jaycees annually kidnap a family who are traveling through Sikeston and give them free lodging, food and tickets for one night's performance of the rodeo.

The Qualls are staying tonight at the Pine Motel. They ate lunch at Ferrell's Cream Castle and they dined at the Mid-Towner.

AFTER being stopped going through Sikeston the Garvie Qualls family of Kokomo, Ind., were taken to the motel where they will stay tonight as guests of the city. From left, Dr. Scott Phillips of the Jaycees, Mrs. Roy Alsup of the Pine Motel, Suzette Qualls, Garvie Qualls, Mrs. Qualls and Chief of Police Arthur Bruce.

Lilbourn R IV Schools Will Open Doors Aug. 30

LILBOURN -- Schools of the Lilbourn RIV school district will open for the 1965-66 school year Aug. 30, according to an announcement made today by Supt. Max Timmons.

For the first time, the Lilbourn schools will be operating on a federally approved plan of open enrollment. Students may choose to attend one of two high schools in the district, and one of three elementary schools.

Pre-school registration of students for the Lilbourn high school and the Howardville high school has been set for Aug. 26, beginning at 8:30 a.m. Buses will make regular runs for this registration.

Elementary students will register on opening day, Aug. 30. Those students who have signed up, previously, to attend the Catron elementary school will be transported to the Howardville elementary. Those who indicated a desire to attend Marston elementary No. 2 will have a choice of attending either Marston No. 1 or Howardville elementary. Both Catron elementary and Marston No. 2 have been closed.

Rev. Owen H. Whitfield Dies

MOUNDS, Ill. AP - Funeral services will be held Saturday for Rev. Owen H. Whitfield, Negro Baptist minister credited with organizing a massive demonstration of sharecroppers in 1939.

The Rev. Mr. Whitfield, pastor of Pilgrims Rest Baptist Church in Mounds died Wednesday in a Cape Girardeau, Mo. hospital at the age of 73.

He persuaded more than 1,200 sharecroppers to camp along U. S. highway 61 in Southeast Missouri for two weeks in near zero temperatures and snowstorms.

The demonstration started after several families were told they would not be rented land again. It was one of the first incidents calling national attention to the problems caused by farm mechanization when land owners began replacing sharecroppers with tractors and day labor.

The Baptist minister also helped organize the United Canner, Agriculture, Packing and Allied Workers of America.

He served in churches in Cape Girardeau, Charleston and Diehlstadt in Missouri and Duquoin, Ill.

Archaeological Team Digs on Farm South of New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- An archaeology team from the University of Missouri in Columbia is digging and researching south of New Madrid on the Bob King farm.

This group, headed by Richard Marshal, director of highway salvage archeaology and a teacher of sociology and antropology at the University, are staking out the lines of houses in an 80 square feet area.

Marshal said that once the house, or houses, have definitely been located, his group hopes to find a trash pit which should contain bits of pottery, tools, weapons, etc. From these objects, archeaologists can determine a good many facts about the way of life of early inhabitants.

When queried about who the people were and when they lived in this region, Marshal replied that at this point he could only make a guess. He indicated that findings might prove that the area was inhabited in pre-historic times, or these houses might have been built in what he referred to as the Baytown Period from Before Christ to 1000 A. D.

In explaining something of what his group is doing and what they hope to find, Marshal talked of three peoples who at one time ranged this area. He identified them by the material they used in making pottery; the clay tempered, sand tempered, and the shell tempered. He seemed to lean toward the latter group as having built these houses as his group recently completed six weeks of digging at a site near Hayti where they found evidence of the shell tempered, or Mississippian people.

The research team is made up of Marshal, Ken Cole, assistant supervisor of the project, and ten research assistants.

Marshal said that they should complete their work on the King farm in three weeks. Once completed, they will return to the University where their findings will be studied and evaluated.

Johnson Administration Hits Jackpot with Senate Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like a slot machine when someone hits the jackpot, the Senate spewed out Wednesday a pay load of Johnson administration legislation and appointment confirmations seldom matched in modern times.

Working with a blinding speed foreign to its nature, the Senate:

—Passed by a 57-33 vote a bill establishing a housing and urban development department. This measure, terms of which must be compromised with the House, creates an 11th Cabinet post after 10 years of controversy.

—Whooped through by a unanimous vote of the 89 senators present a $1-billion pay increase for 4 million service personnel.

—Rammed through and sent to the President on a voice vote a $115-million Peace Corps authorization.

—Rode down scattered opposition and confirmed on a voice vote Johnson's appointment of Abe Fortas, his long-time lawyer friend, to the Supreme Court. Also approved by similar votes were the nominations of Judge Thurgood Marshall, a Negro, as solicitor general and John W. Gardner of New York as secretary of health, education and welfare.

Without stopping to catch its breath, the Senate confirmed 15 other nominations and passed a half dozen minor bills.

The administration took some lumps at the other end of the Capitol, however. A House Armed Services subcommittee killed, at least for this year, a project pushed hard by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara for streamlining Army reserves by dropping low priority units and consolidating high priority ones with the National Guard.

Johnson Plans Tours

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson plans no foreign travel this year but hopes to schedule speaking tours to widely separated parts of the nation in the fall as part of a "report to the people" program.

Johnson's travel plans became the subject of renewed interest after the President confided Wednesday to a visiting delegation of travel industry executives that: "I hope before the year is out — when Congress gets out of here — I can do some traveling too."

White House officials, asked to elaborate on Johnson's plans, emphasized first that no trips to foreign countries were contemplated.

Bill D. Moyers, press secretary, was asked about Johnson's off-the-cuff remark about travel hopes. He said the President wanted to "get out and see parts of the country and see people."

From other sources, it was learned White House aides are thinking in terms of a series of speaking engagements, geographically scattered, in which Johnson would report to the people following the adjournment of Congress. It was understood there also has been tentative talk at the White House about possible presidential conferences outside Washington with such groups as farmers, students, businessmen and, perhaps, labor union leaders.

So far as a presidential vacation was concerned, informants said nothing was in prospect for 1965 apart from visits to the LBJ ranch near Johnson City, Tex.

Cuban Held For Slayings In Solitary

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Cuban exile charged with piracy of the coastal freighter Seven Seas and the murder of five fellow seamen has been placed in a cell alone "for his own protection."

At no time will Roberto Ramirez, 35, be allowed to mingle with other prisoners, said Sgt. Harold Adams of the county jail, "because of the circumstances of the case."

Ramirez, a muscular, dark-skinned Cuban national, was taken to the 8x10, windowless cell Wednesday night after the federal government decided it had jurisdiction over the slayings aboard the Seven Seas.

A U.S. commissioner signed the warrant and a hearing was set for today.

The violence aboard the Seven Seas started, Ramirez reportedly told federal authorities, when the captain and the crew threatened to report him for favoring Cuban dictator Fidel Castro.

The captain was shot to death on the bridge and thrown overboard. Three crewmen were shot in their sleep, and a fourth was killed and thrown into the Atlantic Ocean off the Florida Keys.

A sixth crewman, the cook, apparently drowned when he jumped overboard to escape Ramirez.

Suffers Attack

BENTON - Jerome Blocker, Oran resident and a barber at Chaffee, suffered a slight heart attack while standing outside the Taylor barber shop in Benton, Wednesday at 10:30 a.m.

He was treated by a physician and taken by ambulance to a Cape Girardeau hospital.

Wipe Viet Cong from Jungles

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. and Vietnamese troops lifted the 70-day-old siege of Duc Co today.

Powerful units launched operations to wipe Viet Cong from the jungles flanking 40 miles of highway on which that Special Forces camp is situated near the Cambodian frontier.

In the air war, a U.S. Navy A4 Skyhawk was reported shot down by a surface-to-air missile about 50 miles south-southwest of Hanoi. A military spokesman said the downed craft was one in a formation of four of the single-seat lighweight jet bombers. The pilot was presumed killed.

The spokesman said the area was outside the range of known antiaircraft missile sites in North Viet Nam. He would not elaborate, but it was believed this indicated the missile was fired from a mobile unit.

U.S. troops of the 173rd Airborne Brigade and the 2nd Brigade of the 1st Infantry Division backed up government battalions of a relief column that reached Duc Co Wednesday night.

The Americans had flown Tuesday and Wednesday to Pleiku, 2nd Corps area headquarters in the central highlands, as the relief column neared its goal, 30 miles southwest of Pleiku.

A patrol of U.S. paratroopers made a brief contact with guerrillas today at the village of Plei Ya Ho. Shots were exchanged, but when the paratroopers charged in they found only frightened villagers. No Americans were hit during the shooting.

Progress Pleases Musial

ST LOUIS AP - Stan Musial, leader of the President's physical fitness program, says the march of American youth toward softness has been reversed.

"There's no question about it," said the former St. Louis Cardinal baseball star. "We've won an important victory with the physical fitness program."

Musial's remark came after release of a Pentagon report Wendesday which said that American boys are as healthy -or healthier-than those of 20 years ago. Despite stricter interpretation of medical requirements, the military service rejection rate for physical reasons now is 14.8 per cent compared with 15.1 per cent during World War II.

Underwood to New Madrid

John Underwood, who for the past year has been director of the Scott county welfare office, 312 Center St., has been transferred to New Madrid county, and has been replaced by Mrs. Cathleen Gipson, 722 Sikes.

Mrs. Gipson has served as Mississippi county welfare director in Charleston three years.

She has lived most of her life in Sikeston. She was born in Tennessee, and moved with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Clay Driscoll, to Sikeston at the age of nine months.

She has spent her life in Sikeston with the exception of two and a half years as director of welfare in Ste. Genevieve and Franklin counties, and three years as Mississippi county director.

Father and Son Collide on Road

A father and son car-truck collision was one of three highway accidents reported by the state highway patrol.

Lloyd Keene, 44, Puxico, was traveling south on a dirt road in his 1955 Pontiac, when at a crest of a hill on a narrow road, he met a Ford pickup, driven by David Lloyd Keene, 17, his son.

Neither was injured seriously in the collision. Both were taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff, treated and released. The accident happened at 4 p.m. Wednesday six miles north of Puxico.

In an accident at 4:45 p.m. Wednesday on highway 61 at the weight station near Matthews, a 1964 Rambler, traveling south, driven by Lynn Howell, 70, Hillsdale, skidded, when an unidentified truck made a left turn, into the wrong lane into the path of a 1951 Chevrolet pickup, driven by Thurman Phillips, 51, New Madrid. Neither driver was injured. Phillips was arrested on a charge of careless and reckless driving.

Fined $50

Delora Price, Negro school teacher from Bell City, was fined $50 and costs this morning by Judge E. R. Schrader in city court for petit larceny.

She admitted stealing two packages of meat from the A and P store valued at $1.24 Saturday.

Burglar Takes $1,354 From Food Store Safe

Marks and Stearns Food Mart was broken into last night on North Main and $1,354 was taken from a safe.

Entry was made by breaking into a storeroom door at the back of the store. After entry was made into the storeroom a hole, measuring 20 inches across and 16 inches deep, was opened in a wall.

The safe was not broken into. It was either unlocked by the burglars or it was left unlocked when the store was closed last night at 8:30 p.m.

The burglary was reported to police this morning at 7:04 a.m. by Albert Marks, a store owner.

Chief of Police Arthur Bruce said that he thought the burglar was someone traveling through Sikeston.

Fingerprints were taken but nothing conclusive turned up. Authorities are investigating.

A large portion of the money taken was in small change. Several checks and money orders and possible cigarettes were also taken.

Circus Fans Elect Allen

Earl W. Allen has been elected central vice president of the Circus Fans Association of America. He was elected at the CFA's national convention in Seattle, Wash.

The CFA was organized in 1926, in Washington, D. C., by business and professional men interested in perserving the circus as an American institution. Today the organization has 5,000 members from the United States and Canada who are pledged to fight anything that fights the circus.

Titan Blast Report Held Up

SEARCY, Ark. AP -- The Air Force says it will probably be at least 10 days before it's known what caused an explosion and fire in a Titan II missile complex, killing 53 civilians.

A 30-man investigation team continued today its inspection of the blackened launch tube of America's mightiest ballistic missile -- scene of the worst tragedy in the history of America's space and missile systems.

Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert and an Arkansas congressional delegation went into the underground complex Wednesday, but returned to Washington without revealing any findings.

WASHINGTON AP -- The State Department has announced U.S. recognition of Singapore as a sovereign and independent state.

Bound over on Charge

NEW MADRID - Jenny Bell Cole waived her preliminary hearing this week in a session of magistrate court on a charge of selling intoxicating liquor without a license and was bound over to circuit court for trial with bond set at $500.

Three persons were fined for exceeding legal load limits this week. One of the three, Ralph E. Boyer paid fines of $525 and $195 for overages of 5,800 and 2,500 pounds. Two others were fined amounts less than $100.

Other violations were improper registration of a motor vehicle, Len Verner Jones, $15; driving without lights, Willie B. Hodges, Jr., $15; expired operators's license, Billy Ernest Dunn, $15; excess speed--James Lee Dester, $20; careless and imprudent driving--Louise Burks, $15; vehicle overwidth, Reelfoot Equipment Co., $15; unlicensed operator--Jack Chester Burcks and Jessie Alice Richardson, $15 each; permitting unauthorized person to drive, Bessie Alice Dobson, $15; operating vehicle while license under suspension, Ames Burleson, $15 fine, 30 days in jail, six months probation; defective brakes, Jessie Gamble, $10 fine and leave state for one year; careless and reckless driving, M. C. Crawley $15.

Indiana Family City Guests

"Daddy, you got caught speeding. There's a cop behind us."

That's what Suzette Qualls told her father Garvie Qualls, this morning. Chief of Police Arthur Bruce and Dr. Scott Phillips of the Jaycees turned on a red light and siren to stop the Qualls to invite them to be guests for tonight's opening performance of the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo.

Mr. and Mrs. Garvie Qualls and daughter were returning to their home in Kokomo, Ind., where he works in a Continental Steel plant. They had veen vacationing in Hardy, Ark.

The Jaycees annually kidnap a family who are traveling through Sikeston and give them free lodging, food and tickets for one night's performance of the rodeo.

The Qualls are staying tonight at the Pine Motel. They ate lunch at Ferrell's Cream Castle and they dined at the Mid-Towner.

AFTER being stopped going through Sikeston the Garvie Qualls family of Kokomo, Ind., were taken to the motel where they will stay tonight as guests of the city. From left, Dr. Scott Phillips of the Jaycees, Mrs. Roy Alsup of the Pine Motel, Suzette Qualls, Garvie Qualls, Mrs. Qualls and Chief of Police Arthur Bruce.

Lilbourn R IV Schools Will Open Doors Aug. 30

LILBOURN -- Schools of the Lilbourn RIV school district will open for the 1965-66 school year Aug. 30, according to an announcement made today by Supt. Max Timmons.

For the first time, the Lilbourn schools will be operating on a federally approved plan of open enrollment. Students may choose to attend one of two high schools in the district, and one of three elementary schools.

Pre-school registration of students for the Lilbourn high school and the Howardville high school has been set for Aug. 26, beginning at 8:30 a.m. Buses will make regular runs for this registration.

Elementary students will register on opening day, Aug. 30. Those students who have signed up, previously, to attend the Catron elementary school will be transported to the Howardville elementary. Those who indicated a desire to attend Marston elementary No. 2 will have a choice of attending either Marston No. 1 or Howardville elementary. Both Catron elementary and Marston No. 2 have been closed.

Rev. Owen H. Whitfield Dies

MOUNDS, Ill. AP - Funeral services will be held Saturday for Rev. Owen H. Whitfield, Negro Baptist minister credited with organizing a massive demonstration of sharecroppers in 1939.

The Rev. Mr. Whitfield, pastor of Pilgrims Rest Baptist Church in Mounds died Wednesday in a Cape Girardeau, Mo. hospital at the age of 73.

He persuaded more than 1,200 sharecroppers to camp along U. S. highway 61 in Southeast Missouri for two weeks in near zero temperatures and snowstorms.

The demonstration started after several families were told they would not be rented land again. It was one of the first incidents calling national attention to the problems caused by farm mechanization when land owners began replacing sharecroppers with tractors and day labor.

The Baptist minister also helped organize the United Canner, Agriculture, Packing and Allied Workers of America.

He served in churches in Cape Girardeau, Charleston and Diehlstadt in Missouri and Duquoin, Ill.

Archaeological Team Digs on Farm South of New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- An archaeology team from the University of Missouri in Columbia is digging and researching south of New Madrid on the Bob King farm.

This group, headed by Richard Marshal, director of highway salvage archeaology and a teacher of sociology and antropology at the University, are staking out the lines of houses in an 80 square feet area.

Marshal said that once the house, or houses, have definitely been located, his group hopes to find a trash pit which should contain bits of pottery, tools, weapons, etc. From these objects, archeaologists can determine a good many facts about the way of life of early inhabitants.

When queried about who the people were and when they lived in this region, Marshal replied that at this point he could only make a guess. He indicated that findings might prove that the area was inhabited in pre-historic times, or these houses might have been built in what he referred to as the Baytown Period from Before Christ to 1000 A. D.

In explaining something of what his group is doing and what they hope to find, Marshal talked of three peoples who at one time ranged this area. He identified them by the material they used in making pottery; the clay tempered, sand tempered, and the shell tempered. He seemed to lean toward the latter group as having built these houses as his group recently completed six weeks of digging at a site near Hayti where they found evidence of the shell tempered, or Mississippian people.

The research team is made up of Marshal, Ken Cole, assistant supervisor of the project, and ten research assistants.

Marshal said that they should complete their work on the King farm in three weeks. Once completed, they will return to the University where their findings will be studied and evaluated.

Johnson Administration Hits Jackpot with Senate Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like a slot machine when someone hits the jackpot, the Senate spewed out Wednesday a pay load of Johnson administration legislation and appointment confirmations seldom matched in modern times.

Working with a blinding speed foreign to its nature, the Senate:

—Passed by a 57-33 vote a bill establishing a housing and urban development department. This measure, terms of which must be compromised with the House, creates an 11th Cabinet post after 10 years of controversy.

—Whooped through by a unanimous vote of the 89 senators present a $1-billion pay increase for 4 million service personnel.

—Rammed through and sent to the President on a voice vote a $115-million Peace Corps authorization.

—Rode down scattered opposition and confirmed on a voice vote Johnson's appointment of Abe Fortas, his long-time lawyer friend, to the Supreme Court. Also approved by similar votes were the nominations of Judge Thurgood Marshall, a Negro, as solicitor general and John W. Gardner of New York as secretary of health, education and welfare.

Without stopping to catch its breath, the Senate confirmed 15 other nominations and passed a half dozen minor bills.

The administration took some lumps at the other end of the Capitol, however. A House Armed Services subcommittee killed, at least for this year, a project pushed hard by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara for streamlining Army reserves by dropping low priority units and consolidating high priority ones with the National Guard.

Southeast Missouri voters should vote in favor of amendment two when they cast their ballots in a special election Aug. 17 on three proposed constitutional changes.

This is the proposal:

"To authorize cities, in addition to the existing power to lease, to dispose of plants for manufacturing and industrial development purposes constructed from proceeds of revenue bonds."

This amendment takes care of a defect in present law. Cities now can finance construction of manufacturing facilities by issuing revenue bonds but they have no power to dispose of them. That the basic law itself is sound is evidenced by the fact that communities in 40 states now offer this kind of encouragement to new industry or to expand existing manufacturing plants. Southeast Missouri as well as all other regions of the state need it to be competitive in locating new industrial plants and keeping them.

It was never intended that the properties be required to remain under municipal ownership after the debt was lifted.

Since communities in the state have been given the right to issue bonds to build plants, several Southeast Missouri cities have been able to obtain new industries. They need the flexibility that the privilege of disposing of them provides.

If the amendment is not approved communities, which have obtained industrial plants through revenue bond financing, may lose them. A manufacturer may wish to buy the building or buildings, now denied him.

Some labor unions oppose it. The reason that they are against it is precisely the reason why Southeast Missourians should go to the polls in numbers Aug. 17 and vote for it.

Labor union leaders recognize that the proposal strengthens outstate communities in their efforts to attract industry. They are opposed to it because their strength is concentrated in metropolitan St. Louis and Kansas City.

By staying away from the polls or voting against amendment two Southeast Missourians can help the state's biggest cities keep their industrial plants, assist the labor unions and deny themselves new industry, whether it moves to the Bootheel from a larger city or not.

Our major interest is in developing industry in our own region not in causing manufacturers to confine their operations to large cities or to protect industrial jobs for organized workers there.

Bootheel residents have an opportunity to help themselves Aug. 17.

Go to the polls and vote for amendment two.

One sure way for an aging moving picture star to stimulate revived interest in his career is to marry a young actress or to permit rumors to spread that he is about to do so.

Cary Grant, who is 61, who has caused many a middle aged damsel's heart to throb, has married Dyan Cannon, 27, in one of the film capital's best kept secrets.

About the only news coming from the honeymoon was that both suffered from bad colds, a minor complaint indeed for an aging bridegroom trying to keep up with an agile, pretty, young bride.

Grant gained a bride where the tourists lose their money in Las Vegas. This is his fourth trip to the altar and Miss Cannon's first.

Sure fire box office stuff is 49-year-old Frank Sinatra's romantic yacht journey off the East Coast with Mia Farrow, 19-year-old school girl in television's version of "Peyton Place." The couple don't deny rumors that they are planning to marry but they don't confirm them either. This permits maximum public interest to build up and publicity to follow them wherever their chartered yacht sails.

Miss Farrow has been written temporarily out of the script of "Peyton Place", which may become permanent if she married old Frank. This could be a trifling interlude in her acting career. Even if she loses her "Peyton Place" role and Sinatra as well public attention may win better parts for her.

Should wedding bells ring it would be Sinatra's third marriage and the first for Miss Farrow, daughter of Maureen O'Sullivan and the late Director John Farrow.

Hollywood is a wonderful place.

There is nothing difficult about an old actor getting married again. By the time they are old they have had lots of experience getting in and out of matriomny. It's a continuous process and rather old hat.

But with the fans it's exciting. They sigh and reach for the newspapers to read more.

THOSE FRINGE OPERATORS

There is hardly any area of successful business activity that doesn't inevitably attract a certain element which, trading on the legitimate successful operators, manages to make a living out of being simply downright dishonest.

Commonly referred to as "fringe operators," these characters pose as legitimate business men. But anyone who does business with them is quickly disenchanted when he is parted from his money, and the promise offered has not been kept. These fringe operators are under constant attack from various local, state and federal regulatory agencies, as well as organizations like the better business bureaus. This vigilance tends to limit the scope of the wheelers-and-dealers, but not even the strictest regulation and enforcement will drive them from their shady dealings.

A recent example of just such a case came to light as a result of a letter this publication received from an automobile dealer. This dealer had been phoned by a "publication" which had seen his ad in the Wall Street Journal and suggested that the same ad be run in its pages. The caller said that he had "a reciprocal agreement with the Wall Street Journal" and the plate or mat for this ad already was in his possession.

Unfortunately, the automobile dealer agreed (he says reluctantly), sight unseen, and two days later was the recipient of an invoice for $450. No copy of the "publication" was forthcoming, so the dealer didn't pay the bill. Then he got a phone call asking why he hadn't paid, and ten days later was "shocked beyond belief to receive a minimal green newspaper tabloid" containing his ad. Then came another phone call, and this time the caller reduced the bill to $350 and promised to publish some editorial material about the dealer.

It would be refreshing if this sorry talk could be concluded by saying that the dealer told the operator to get lost, and refused payment of any sort. But, alas, such was not the case. Our victim wrote the operator of this questionable enterprise a two-page letter, with carbons to the Assn. of Better Business Bureaus, Wall Street Journal and ADVERTISING AGE, saying he had "never been so misled and shocked by any transaction such as this"--and enclosed a $350 check.

As long as well-meaning but naive business men shell out money this easily the fringe boys will continue to ply their trade.

Community Vehicle Safety-Check Programs in Missouri have merited seven awards from the National Board of Judges which met in Washington, D. C., late last month, according to an announcement by Colonel H. Waggoner, Superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol.

Six youth sponsored programs and one sponsored by a Business and Professional Women's Club received the honors.

The Vehicle Safety-Check Program for Communities is an annual, nation-wide traffic safety program to encourage vehicle safety maintenance. The Missouri Highway Patrol's Department of Public Information and Education coordinated the program on the state level.

Receiving honors were:

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Unionville in Putnam County.

The Buchanan High School, Safe Drivers Club of Troy in Lincoln County.

The Owensville High School, Golden Rule Safety Council in Gasconade County.

The Gentry County 4-H Club in Albany.

The Salisbury High School FFA Club in Chariton County.

The Worth County 4-H Club in Grant City.

The Brookfield High School in Linn County.

Colonel Waggoner pointed out that youth sponsored programs have outdone the adult programs in Missouri for several years by grabbing the lions share of the awards.

A bill making vehicle safety inspections mandatory in Missouri failed by one vote of passing in the last session of the Legislature.

"We are proud of these and all the other community programs," said Colonel Waggoner. "They have done an excellent job of promoting vehicle safety maintenance, and no doubt, their efforts have been effective in preventing accidents," he concluded.

When taking flower pictures use a close-up lens. An overall picture of the garden, no matter how colorful it looks to you, is usually only confusing when it is projected on the screen. A close up of the flower is much more interesting. The only precaution when you are using a close-up lens is to make sure that you measure the distance from the lens to the flower accurately as indicated in the instruction sheets which accompanies the lens. A piece of string tied to the front of the camera with knots at the correct distance makes a handy measuring device.

SAFETY ON A PLATE

The American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, the state officials in charge of vehicle registration and operation, recently recommended the use of "safety" license plates as an effective, inexpensive way to reduce rear-end collisions on our highways.

The safety tags, now being used by 13 states and the District of Columbia (and by three more states in 1964), are covered with a reflective material that shines brilliantly at night in the headlights of approaching cars.

The cost of the plates, as compared to standard plates, is only about 25 cents more per car - cheap enough, if accidents and deaths are prevented by their use.

These plates are particularly useful because studies of the operating condition of cars over the past years show that rear lights and stop lights are the parts most commonly defective. In 1962, a National Safety Council study found that 34 percent of cars had defective lights on the rear. The next most common item, front lights, was a distant second with only 11 percent.

If a car could be equipped with a safety device that can be seen from as far as 1,500 feet at night, even if the car that was parked or disabled had no operating lights, it could prevent many accidents.

And the cost? At a quarter a car, it's worth it.

TIME TO POLYUNSATURATE?

How are your lipids?

The general idea is if they are doing well - you ain't! Physicians, bio-chemists and medical researchers explain that these lipids - from the Greek "lipos" meaning fat - are a class of greasy things, including cholesterol and sundry other items that get into your blood if you don't watch out and contribute to atherosclerosis (hardening - of - the -arteries to you).

If you want lipids, say the medicos, just go ahead and consume all the saturated fats you please. But if you want to avoid high blood pressure, you should go for fats that are "polyunsaturated".

How do you do that? We don't suppose the butcher could give you polyunsaturated pork chops, or your favorite restaurant provide you with a polyunsaturated menu. But you can buy a can of Maine sardines most anywhere - which, it turns out are about as polyunsaturated as any nourishing, high protein food you can find, and also get after the lipids already lurking among your corpuscles.

This is the substance of a scholarly report in the Journal of the American geriatrics Society on highly scientific studies recently completed in Cambridge, Mass. In this investigation, 62 volunteer subjects - 24 men and 38 women from 26 to 90 years of age and all with elevated serum cholesterol levels - substituted a full can of Maine sardines including the soybean packing oil every day for a part of the butter, cream, proteins and cereals in their normal diet for as long as 26 weeks. Within four weeks, according to the medical researchers, the lipids were on the lam; and following the sardine diet, cholesterol levels - high in all the patients tested - also were lower.

As for those people who are fond of their lipids - and Maine sardines, too; they will just have to choose which to give up.

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — An American tourist wandering 10 feet from the door of his Warsaw hotel is accosted by a sinister individual, who whispers:

"Like to exchange, please Like to exchange?"

He wants to exchange zlotys for American dollars.

There is nothing unusual about this — it is practiced in some of the best capitals of the world, including Moscow — but in Poland, the game is more interesting.

The zloty is the Polish unit of currency — like the French franc, Russian ruble or British pound — although it is much more flexible.

How flexible nobody really knows.

In the official statistics, the rate is four zlotys to the dollar.

The tourist rate is 24-1. This year, the tourist has been given a bonus of 16 zlotys, making the rate 40-1.

But that is just chicken-feed.

Any Pole can go to a national savings bank and exchange dollars at the rate of 72-1.

This is a sort of gray market. It's a method for the government to get precious dollars.

The 72-1 rate is not the ultimate, however.

The black marketeers will go as high as 100-1. There are rumors these lapel-grabbing merchants are really tools of the government seeking to latch onto more dollars.

However, some of the marketeers have been sought out and carried off to jail.

The reason the black marketeers can offer 100-1 is that with dollars in hand they can buy goods at a value of 140-1. At least, that's what they say in the smoke-filled cabarets of Warsaw.

Zloty currency is unimposing engraved paper with denominations starting at 20, and going to 50, 100 and 500. Nobody seems to want it.

The U.S. Embassy has 11 billion of the things stored away in closets and bank vaults —from the sale of surplus wheat. The Poles soon must start redeeming them in dollars.

The visitor is kept in a constant state of confusion.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky, who calls Hitler his No. 1 hero and is giving the cold shoulder to U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, is a flamboyant little man who wears purple scarves, flies a purple airplane, and composes love poems which he likes to read in public. He has been having romantic troubles.

Not long ago, he married a Vietnamese airline hostess. No one seemed to know whether it was his second or third marriage.

Before Ky came along, she had kept company with a French boy friend who suddenly departed for Paris. She bade him goodbye, then took up residence in Ky's home.

Now the Frenchman has returned to Saigon, where he was welcomed personally by South Viet Nam's new First Lady. They have been seen together lately around Saigon.

This has led to admiring comments about the Frenchman's courage. For Prime Minister Ky has a reputation for solving pesky problems such as black marketing, by executing the offenders.

He abruptly brought down the price of rice, for example, by threatening to shoot one of Saigon's six richest rice merchants (he left it to them to worry about which one) unless the price dropped.

It remains to be seen whether he can straighten out his marital difficulties as easily.

ALIBIS FOR HITLER

Premier Ky's admiration for Hitler was not generally reported in the American press until recently. As early as last January the London Times revealed an intimation of that reverence. Then, on July 4, the London Daily Mirror published an interview with Brian Moynahan quoting Ky as saying:

"People ask me who my heroes are. I have only one -- Hitler. I admire Hitler because he pulled his country together when it was in terrible shape in the early thirties. But the situation here is so desperate now that one man would not be enough. We need four or five Hitlers in Viet Nam."

Despite the fact that the London Mirror published this with a large page one photo plus the headline "Hitler -- My Hero," few American newsmen picked it up. Among the exceptions were the Washington Post, Radio Station Wins in New York, and The New York Post.

Despite this silence, Ky got so much backlash that two weeks later he issued this rather lame explanation:

"When I referred to Hitler incidentally during one of my conversations with journalists, I had in mind the ideal that Viet Nam needed above all leadership and a sense of discipline in order to face the crucial aggression of communism."

Then on August 6, three weeks after this alibi, Ky's staff came up with a second.

"Vice Marshal Ky's admiration does not go to Hitler, dictator, warmonger and Nazi, but rather to the leader who in the 1930's by sheer energy and dynamism, was able to build the unity of Germany, a country then divided," said a government announcement.

"Viewed from this angle one would not hesitate to wish Viet Nam to be headed by a leader endowed with the energy and dynamism of the Hitler of the beginning of Germany's Renaissance."

Despite the alibis, it's obvious that our puppet in South Viet Nam will bear watching.

CHEAP DESALINIZED WATER

Most efficient system for desalting water so far developed by man has recently been revealed by Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall to the governors and mayors of the parched Atlantic seaboard.

It was developed by the Interior Department in cooperation with the Bechtel Development Corporation of California, and produces fresh water from the ocean at the record low cost of 26 cents per thousand gallons.

This compares with a cost in 1952 of $5 per thousand gallons and in 1965 of $1. The salinization plant which President Johnson ordered from Point Loma, Calif., to Guantanamo during the 1964 row with Castro produces fresh water at a cost of $1 per thousand gallons.

The Interior Department expects to start construction of the first Bechtel Desalinization Plant in 1968 on an island off the California coast opposite San Diego. Interior officials are now looking for an appropriate island. This is preferred to the mainland, first because an island is cheaper; second because the water intake from an island would avoid seaweed and rough water.

Real estate developers along the Southern California coast have shot land prices sky high; also there's opposition to a nuclear power plant near population centers. So the fresh water will be piped from the island to the mainland and hooked into the San Diego metropolitan water department in 1971 at the rate of 150 million gallons daily.

WATER FOR IRRIGATION

This should take care of Southern California's growing population and water needs up until 1972, when the Feather River water project, linking Northern California water to the south, should be completed.

The Interior Department's desalinization program is under Frank C. Diluzio, who helped develop the desalinization plant for Fairbanks-Whitney under David Karr, the Fairbanks-Whitney chairman.

Fairbanks - Whitney, working at Beloit, Wis., and in Israel, developed a plant which produced five million gallons of water a day at a cost of 80 to 90 cents per thousand gallons. Mr. Diluzio has borrowed from his past Fairbanks-Whitney experiences; is also cooperating with Russian engineers, under the agreement signed by President Johnson.

"Twelve - cent desalinized water is no longer an impossible target," says Diluzio. "This is the cost of irrigation water. Eventually we can take it out of the sea for that price, but it will require a few years yet."

American diplomats required Chiang Kai-shek to accept communists into the Chinese government, and soon he and his followers were forced to flee from the Chinese mainland to save their lives and whatever possessions they could take to Formosa.

The large army we helped Chiang train in Formosa was not permitted to assist in repelling the hordes from Red China, and the U. S. Seventh Fleet blockaded Chiang from an attempt to retake the Chinese mainland.

Pursuing this policy Governments friendly to the U. S. throughout the world have been liquidated with the U. S. State and Defense Departments assisting in their demise.

The late Syngman Rhee, the grand old man of Korea, was forced out. The Diems in South Vietnam were assassinated, and the strong pro-Western governments in Cuba, Turkey, Katanga, Dominican Republic, Pakistan, Venezuela, Zanzibar and many others fell.

The cardinal sin and fatal weakness of these toppled Governments was their friendliness toward the U. S. Except for this error of their way, many of them would be ruling their homelands today. Ours, the most powerful nation in the world, could easily have prevented their collapse and assisted them in improving their governments month by month instead of surrendering their people into slavery.

Patriots in the U. S. who deplore this loss of hundreds of millions of people into Communist domination are neither hatemongers, extremists, super-patriots nor ultra-rightists.

Many U. S. citizens who object to Communism are news only if they can be charged somehow with guilt. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Communists Joined in Looting Brazil Of Billions of Dollars.

Rio de Janeiro: -- Up in New York City not too many years ago a Soviet courier met a powerful underworld thug (now dead) in a West 46th Street restaurant and offered him $1 million to permit the American Communists to operate politically in that strategic harbor.

That was a penny-pinching deal compared with the pacts made here, before the military revolution, between the Brazilian Communists and the regime so much adored by leftists across the world. A political partnership was developed permitting the Communist party to control virtually all of labor in this country, while the men in power piled up fortunes literally worth billions of dollars.

Records here reveal that the ousted leftist ex-president Joao Goulart had amassed in his name and that of his family and business associates over 1.75 million acres of valuable land. Though governing allegedly in the name of the proletariat, this man, head of the Brazilian Labor Party, had become the world's largest landowner.

His fazendas (haciendas) and other real estate were widely scattered in this huge land which is half a continent in size. So he used air force planes to link them. The federal aircraft also were used to transport managerial staffs, agricultural machinery, building material and even cattle.

He and his brother-in-law, Leonel Brizola, head of the "wild men" power blow in the Labor Party, also took care of their friends and Communist political allies. Their cronies, too, picked up fazendas and thus were eligible for special subsidies, much of which was intended for sugar workers' wages. Again, records show that a considerable share of these large sums went into foreign banks and even the purchase of private airplanes.

Buddies and Communists and their relatives were put on government payrolls by the tens of thousands. They rarely showed up for work. When the reform administration of President General Castello Branco, leader of the anti-Communist revolution, ordered all federal employes to report to work, thousands of them did not even know the addresses of bureaus from which they had been drawing their pay. And some of them had several such jobs.

When President Branco insisted his orders be obeyed, there were mob scenes in many government agencies." Employes" jammed the government offices -- standing around the big rooms because there were hardly enough desks and chairs for all on the payroll.

The Communists, in turn, got their biggest chunk of government pie from the federal corporation known as Petrobras -- the state-owned oil business.

They had virtual control of the company. They got thousands of their party people on its payroll. They used its funds to finance their activities. They commandeered trucks to carry party activists to big Communist demonstrations.

All these instances could be multiplied tenfold. But why did the multimillionaire Goulart make a pact with the Marxists? Simple. Goulart and his inner group, failing to read history, thought they could use the Communist apparatus to keep the government in power.

Only part of the military stood in their way. So Goulart and his clique attempted to subvert their own government in the hope that a peoples' rebellion led by Communists would crush the democratic military force -- and thus make it possible for Goulart to rule as absolute dictator.

The macabre history of the final months of Goulart's regime were outlined for me by the suave and cultured Brazilian Foreign Minister, Vasco Leitao da Cunha, in his old, tradition-laden office.

He described Brizola's organization of guerrilla cadres called "Groups of 11." Mr. da Cunha, the Dean of Brazil, a taut, eloquent chap, described revolutionary pamphlets put out by the Goulart Ministry of Education which urged the peasants to rebel. He disclosed the Communists had seeped into the navy and were showing enlisted men a Soviet film depicting a naval revolt. At the end of the movie a voice dubbed in said to the Brazilian sailors: Now you know what to do.

Then Brizola and others would get on three radio networks to exhort the people to revolt. One network belonged to the unions, another to the Ministry of Education and the third to Brizola himself.

To prevent chaos and seizure of Brazil by the Communists, who had by March 1964 come under Peiping influence, the military drove out Goulart and the militant Marxists went underground -- for the moment.

And yet there are those who believe that the ousted leftist government was moving towards the redemption of the common man, simple because it sloganeered as a progressive movement.

Were it not for the democratic military force, this half continent would today be the southern end of the Peiping-Havana Axis.

Southeast Missouri voters should vote in favor of amendment two when they cast their ballots in a special election Aug. 17 on three proposed constitutional changes.

This is the proposal:

"To authorize cities, in addition to the existing power to lease, to dispose of plants for manufacturing and industrial development purposes constructed from proceeds of revenue bonds."

This amendment takes care of a defect in present law. Cities now can finance construction of manufacturing facilities by issuing revenue bonds but they have no power to dispose of them. That the basic law itself is sound is evidenced by the fact that communities in 40 states now offer this kind of encouragement to new industry or to expand existing manufacturing plants. Southeast Missouri as well as all other regions of the state need it to be competitive in locating new industrial plants and keeping them.

It was never intended that the properties be required to remain under municipal ownership after the debt was lifted.

Since communities in the state have been given the right to issue bonds to build plants, several Southeast Missouri cities have been able to obtain new industries. They need the flexibility that the privilege of disposing of them provides.

If the amendment is not approved communities, which have obtained industrial plants through revenue bond financing, may lose them. A manufacturer may wish to buy the building or buildings, now denied him.

Some labor unions oppose it. The reason that they are against it is precisely the reason why Southeast Missourians should go to the polls in numbers Aug. 17 and vote for it.

Labor union leaders recognize that the proposal strengthens outstate communities in their efforts to attract industry. They are opposed to it because their strength is concentrated in metropolitan St. Louis and Kansas City.

By staying away from the polls or voting against amendment two Southeast Missourians can help the state's biggest cities keep their industrial plants, assist the labor unions and deny themselves new industry, whether it moves to the Bootheel from a larger city or not.

Our major interest is in developing industry in our own region not in causing manufacturers to confine their operations to large cities or to protect industrial jobs for organized workers there.

Bootheel residents have an opportunity to help themselves Aug. 17.

Go to the polls and vote for amendment two.

One sure way for an aging moving picture star to stimulate revived interest in his career is to marry a young actress or to permit rumors to spread that he is about to do so.

Cary Grant, who is 61, who has caused many a middle aged damsel's heart to throb, has married Dyan Cannon, 27, in one of the film capital's best kept secrets.

About the only news coming from the honeymoon was that both suffered from bad colds, a minor complaint indeed for an aging bridegroom trying to keep up with an agile, pretty, young bride.

Grant gained a bride where the tourists lose their money in Las Vegas. This is his fourth trip to the altar and Miss Cannon's first.

Sure fire box office stuff is 49-year-old Frank Sinatra's romantic yacht journey off the East Coast with Mia Farrow, 19-year-old school girl in television's version of "Peyton Place." The couple don't deny rumors that they are planning to marry but they don't confirm them either. This permits maximum public interest to build up and publicity to follow them wherever their chartered yacht sails.

Miss Farrow has been written temporarily out of the script of "Peyton Place", which may become permanent if she married old Frank. This could be a trifling interlude in her acting career. Even if she loses her "Peyton Place" role and Sinatra as well public attention may win better parts for her.

Should wedding bells ring it would be Sinatra's third marriage and the first for Miss Farrow, daughter of Maureen O'Sullivan and the late Director John Farrow.

Hollywood is a wonderful place.

There is nothing difficult about an old actor getting married again. By the time they are old they have had lots of experience getting in and out of matriomny. It's a continuous process and rather old hat.

But with the fans it's exciting. They sigh and reach for the newspapers to read more.

THOSE FRINGE OPERATORS

There is hardly any area of successful business activity that doesn't inevitably attract a certain element which, trading on the legitimate successful operators, manages to make a living out of being simply downright dishonest.

Commonly referred to as "fringe operators," these characters pose as legitimate business men. But anyone who does business with them is quickly disenchanted when he is parted from his money, and the promise offered has not been kept. These fringe operators are under constant attack from various local, state and federal regulatory agencies, as well as organizations like the better business bureaus. This vigilance tends to limit the scope of the wheelers-and-dealers, but not even the strictest regulation and enforcement will drive them from their shady dealings.

A recent example of just such a case came to light as a result of a letter this publication received from an automobile dealer. This dealer had been phoned by a "publication" which had seen his ad in the Wall Street Journal and suggested that the same ad be run in its pages. The caller said that he had "a reciprocal agreement with the Wall Street Journal" and the plate or mat for this ad already was in his possession.

Unfortunately, the automobile dealer agreed (he says reluctantly), sight unseen, and two days later was the recipient of an invoice for $450. No copy of the "publication" was forthcoming, so the dealer didn't pay the bill. Then he got a phone call asking why he hadn't paid, and ten days later was "shocked beyond belief to receive a minimal green newspaper tabloid" containing his ad. Then came another phone call, and this time the caller reduced the bill to $350 and promised to publish some editorial material about the dealer.

It would be refreshing if this sorry talk could be concluded by saying that the dealer told the operator to get lost, and refused payment of any sort. But, alas, such was not the case. Our victim wrote the operator of this questionable enterprise a two-page letter, with carbons to the Assn. of Better Business Bureaus, Wall Street Journal and ADVERTISING AGE, saying he had "never been so misled and shocked by any transaction such as this"--and enclosed a $350 check.

As long as well-meaning but naive business men shell out money this easily the fringe boys will continue to ply their trade.

ADVERTISING AGE

Does this sound familiar boys?

Community Vehicle Safety-Check Programs in Missouri have merited seven awards from the National Board of Judges which met in Washington, D. C., late last month, according to an announcement by Colonel H. Waggoner, Superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol.

Six youth sponsored programs and one sponsored by a Business and Professional Women's Club received the honors.

The Vehicle Safety-Check Program for Communities is an annual, nation-wide traffic safety program to encourage vehicle safety maintenance. The Missouri Highway Patrol's Department of Public Information and Education coordinated the program on the state level.

Receiving honors were:

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Unionville in Putnam County.

The Buchanan High School, Safe Drivers Club of Troy in Lincoln County.

The Owensville High School, Golden Rule Safety Council in Gasconade County.

The Gentry County 4-H Club in Albany.

The Salisbury High School FFA Club in Chariton County.

The Worth County 4-H Club in Grant City.

The Brookfield High School in Linn County.

Colonel Waggoner pointed out that youth sponsored programs have outdone the adult programs in Missouri for several years by grabbing the lions share of the awards.

A bill making vehicle safety inspections mandatory in Missouri failed by one vote of passing in the last session of the Legislature.

"We are proud of these and all the other community programs," said Colonel Waggoner. "They have done an excellent job of promoting vehicle safety maintenance, and no doubt, their efforts have been effective in preventing accidents," he concluded.

When taking flower pictures use a close-up lens. An overall picture of the garden, no matter how colorful it looks to you, is usually only confusing when it is projected on the screen. A close up of the flower is much more interesting. The only precaution when you are using a close-up lens is to make sure that you measure the distance from the lens to the flower accurately as indicated in the instruction sheets which accompanies the lens. A piece of string tied to the front of the camera with knots at the correct distance makes a handy measuring device.

SAFETY ON A PLATE

The American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, the state officials in charge of vehicle registration and operation, recently recommended the use of "safety" license plates as an effective, inexpensive way to reduce rear-end collisions on our highways.

The safety tags, now being used by 13 states and the District of Columbia (and by three more states in 1964), are covered with a reflective material that shines brilliantly at night in the headlights of approaching cars.

The cost of the plates, as compared to standard plates, is only about 25 cents more per car - cheap enough, if accidents and deaths are prevented by their use.

These plates are particularly useful because studies of the operating condition of cars over the past years show that rear lights and stop lights are the parts most commonly defective. In 1962, a National Safety Council study found that 34 percent of cars had defective lights on the rear. The next most common item, front lights, was a distant second with only 11 percent.

If a car could be equipped with a safety device that can be seen from as far as 1,500 feet at night, even if the car that was parked or disabled had no operating lights, it could prevent many accidents.

And the cost? At a quarter a car, it's worth it.

TIME TO POLYUNSATURATE?

How are your lipids?

The general idea is if they are doing well - you ain't! Physicians, bio-chemists and medical researchers explain that these lipids - from the Greek "lipos" meaning fat - are a class of greasy things, including cholesterol and sundry other items that get into your blood if you don't watch out and contribute to atherosclerosis (hardening - of - the -arteries to you).

If you want lipids, say the medicos, just go ahead and consume all the saturated fats you please. But if you want to avoid high blood pressure, you should go for fats that are "polyunsaturated".

How do you do that? We don't suppose the butcher could give you polyunsaturated pork chops, or your favorite restaurant provide you with a polyunsaturated menu. But you can buy a can of Maine sardines most anywhere - which, it turns out are about as polyunsaturated as any nourishing, high protein food you can find, and also get after the lipids already lurking among your corpuscles.

This is the substance of a scholarly report in the Journal of the American geriatrics Society on highly scientific studies recently completed in Cambridge, Mass. In this investigation, 62 volunteer subjects - 24 men and 38 women from 26 to 90 years of age and all with elevated serum cholesterol levels - substituted a full can of Maine sardines including the soybean packing oil every day for a part of the butter, cream, proteins and cereals in their normal diet for as long as 26 weeks. Within four weeks, according to the medical researchers, the lipids were on the lam; and following the sardine diet, cholesterol levels - high in all the patients tested - also were lower.

As for those people who are fond of their lipids - and Maine sardines, too; they will just have to choose which to give up.

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — An American tourist wandering 10 feet from the door of his Warsaw hotel is accosted by a sinister individual, who whispers: "Like to exchange, please Like to exchange?"

He wants to exchange zlotys for American dollars.

There is nothing unusual about this — it is practiced in some of the best capitals of the world, including Moscow — but in Poland, the game is more interesting.

The zloty is the Polish unit of currency — like the French franc, Russian ruble or British pound — although it is much more flexible.

How flexible nobody really knows.

In the official statistics, the rate is four zlotys to the dollar.

The tourist rate is 24-1. This year, the tourist has been given a bonus of 16 zlotys, making the rate 40-1.

But that is just chicken-feed.

Any Pole can go to a national savings bank and exchange dollars at the rate of 72-1.

This is a sort of gray market. It's a method for the government to get precious dollars.

The 72-1 rate is not the ultimate, however.

The black marketeers will go as high as 100-1. There are rumors these lapel-grabbing merchants are really tools of the government seeking to latch onto more dollars.

However, some of the marketeers have been sought out and carried off to jail.

The reason the black marketeers can offer 100-1 is that with dollars in hand they can buy goods at a value of 140-1. At least, that's what they say in the smoke-filled cabaretes of Warsaw.

Zloty currency is unimposing engraved paper with denominations starting at 20, and going to 50, 100 and 500. Nobody seems to want it.

The U.S. Embassy has 11 billion of the things stored away in closets and bank vaults —from the sale of surplus wheat. The Poles soon must start redeeming them in dollars.

The visitor is kept in a constant state of confusion.

At the statistical rate, one zloty is worth 25 cents and a fair-sized tip for a lunch or a cab ride.

But, at 100-1, as most Poles view it, it is worth a penny. Give it for a tip and you get nothing but coffee in the lap and a dirty look.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky, who calls Hitler his No. 1 hero and is giving the cold shoulder to U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, is a flamboyant little man who wears purple scarves, flies a purple airplane, and composes love poems which he likes to read in public. He has been having romantic troubles.

Not long ago, he married a Vietnamese airline hostess. No one seemed to know whether it was his second or third marriage.

Before Ky came along, she had kept company with a French boy friend who suddenly departed for Paris. She bade him goodbye, then took up residence in Ky's home.

Now the Frenchman has returned to Saigon, where he was welcomed personally by South Viet Nam's new First Lady. They have been seen together lately around Saigon.

This has led to admiring comments about the Frenchman's courage. For Prime Minister Ky has a reputation for solving pesky problems such as black marketing, by executing the offenders.

He abruptly brought down the price of rice, for example, by threatening to shoot one of Saigon's six richest rice merchants (he left it to them to worry about which one) unless the price dropped.

It remains to be seen whether he can straighten out his marital difficulties as easily.

ALIBIS FOR HITLER

Premier Ky's admiration for Hitler was not generally reported in the American press until recently. As early as last January the London Times revealed an intimation of that reverence. Then, on July 4, the London Daily Mirror published an interview with Brian Moynahan quoting Ky as saying:

"People ask me who my heroes are. I have only one -- Hitler. I admire Hitler because he pulled his country together when it was in terrible shape in the early thirties. But the situation here is so desperate now that one man would not be enough. We need four or five Hitlers in Viet Nam."

Despite the fact that the London Mirror published this with a large page one photo plus the headline "Hitler -- My Hero," few American newsmen picked it up. Among the exceptions were the Washington Post, Radio Station Wins in New York, and The New York Post.

Despite this silence, Ky got so much backlash that two weeks later he issued this rather lame explanation:

"When I referred to Hitler incidentally during one of my conversations with journalists, I had in mind the ideal that Viet Nam needed above all leadership and a sense of discipline in order to face the crucial aggression of communism."

Then on August 6, three weeks after this alibi, Ky's staff came up with a second.

"Vice Marshal Ky's admiration does not go to Hitler, dictator, warmonger and Nazi, but rather to the leader who in the 1930's by sheer energy and dynamism, was able to build the unity of Germany, a country then divided," said a government announcement.

"Viewed from this angle one would not hesitate to wish Viet Nam to be headed by a leader endowed with the energy and dynamism of the Hitler of the beginning of Germany's Renaissance."

Despite the alibis, it's obvious that our puppet in South Viet Nam will bear watching.

CHEAP DESALINIZED WATER

Most efficient system for desalting water so far developed by man has recently been revealed by Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall to the governors and mayors of the parched Atlantic seaboard.

It was developed by the Interior Department in cooperation with the Bechtel Development Corporation of California, and produces fresh water from the ocean at the record low cost of 26 cents per thousand gallons.

This compares with a cost in 1952 of $5 per thousand gallons and in 1965 of $1. The salinization plant which President Johnson ordered from Point Loma, Calif., to Guantanamo during the 1964 row with Castro produces fresh water at a cost of $1 per thousand gallons.

The Interior Department expects to start construction of the first Bechtel Desalinization Plant in 1968 on an island off the California coast opposite San Diego. Interior officials are now looking for an appropriate island. This is preferred to the mainland, first because an island is cheaper; second because the water intake from an island would avoid seaweed and rough water.

Real estate developers along the Southern California coast have shot land prices sky high; also there's opposition to a nuclear power plant near population centers. So the fresh water will be piped from the island to the mainland and hooked into the San Diego metropolitan water department in 1971 at the rate of 150 million gallons daily.

WATER FOR IRRIGATION

This should take care of Southern California's growing population and water needs up until 1972, when the Feather River water project, linking Northern California water to the south, should be completed.

The Interior Department's desalinization program is under Frank C. Diluzio, who helped develop the desalinization plant for Fairbanks-Whitney under David Karr, the Fairbanks-Whitney chairman.

Fairbanks - Whitney, working at Beloit, Wis., and in Israel, developed a plant which produced five million gallons of water a day at a cost of 80 to 90 cents per thousand gallons. Mr. Diluzio has borrowed from his past Fairbanks-Whitney experiences; is also cooperating with Russian engineers, under the agreement signed by President Johnson.

"Twelve - cent desalinized water is no longer an impossible target," says Diluzio. "This is the cost of irrigation water. Eventually we can take it out of the sea for that price, but it will require a few years yet."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Communists Joined in Looting Brazil Of Billions of Dollars.

Rio de Janeiro: -- Up in New York City not too many years ago a Soviet courier met a powerful underworld thug (now dead) in a West 46th Street restaurant and offered him $1 million to permit the American Communists to operate politically in that strategic harbor.

That was a penny-pinching deal compared with the pacts made here, before the military revolution, between the Brazilian Communists and the regime so much adored by leftists across the world. A political partnership was developed permitting the Communist party to control virtually all of labor in this country, while the men in power piled up fortunes literally worth billions of dollars.

Records here reveal that the ousted leftist ex-president Joao Goulart had amassed in his name and that of his family and business associates over 1.75 million acres of valuable land. Though governing allegedly in the name of the proletariat, this man, head of the Brazilian Labor Party, had become the world's largest landowner.

His fazendas (haciendas) and other real estate were widely scattered in this huge land which is half a continent in size. So he used air force planes to link them. The federal aircraft also were used to transport managerial staffs, agricultural machinery, building material and even cattle.

He and his brother-in-law, Leonel Brizola, head of the "wild men" power blow in the Labor Party, also took care of their friends and Communist political allies. Their cronies, too, picked up fazendas and thus were eligible for special subsidies, much of which was intended for sugar workers' wages. Again, records show that a considerable share of these large sums went into foreign banks and even the purchase of private airplanes.

Buddies and Communists and their relatives were put on government payrolls by the tens of thousands. They rarely showed up for work. When the reform administration of President General Castello Branco, leader of the anti-Communist revolution, ordered all federal employes to report to work, thousands of them did not even know the addresses of bureaus from which they had been drawing their pay. And some of them had several such jobs.

When President Branco insisted his orders be obeyed, there were mob scenes in many government agencies." Employes" jammed the government offices -- standing around the big rooms because there were hardly enough desks and chairs for all on the payroll.

The Communists, in turn, got their biggest chunk of government pie from the federal corporation known as Petrobras -- the state-owned oil business.

They had virtual control of the company. They got thousands of their party people on its payroll. They used its funds to finance their activities. They commandeered trucks to carry party activists to big Communist demonstrations.

All these instances could be multiplied tenfold. But why did the multimillionaire Goulart make a pact with the Marxists? Simple. Goulart and his inner group, failing to read history, thought they could use the Communist apparatus to keep the government in power.

Only part of the military stood in their way. So Goulart and his clique attempted to subvert their own government in the hope that a peoples' rebellion led by Communists would crush the democratic military force -- and thus make it possible for Goulart to rule as absolute dictator.

The macabre history of the final months of Goulart's regime were outlined for me by the suave and cultured Brazilian Foreign Minister, Vasco Leitao da Cunha, in his old, tradition-laden office.

He described Brizola's organization of guerrilla cadres called "Groups of 11." Mr. da Cunha, the Dean of Brazil, a taut, eloquent chap, described revolutionary pamphlets put out by the Goulart Ministry of Education which urged the peasants to rebel. He disclosed the Communists had seeped into the navy and were showing enlisted men a Soviet film depicting a naval revolt. At the end of the movie a voice dubbed in said to the Brazilian sailors: Now you know what to do.

Then Brizola and others would get on three radio networks to exhort the people to revolt. One network belonged to the unions, another to the Ministry of Education and the third to Brizola himself.

To prevent chaos and seizure of Brazil by the Communists, who had by March 1964 come under Peiping influence, the military drove out Goulart and the militant Marxists went underground -- for the moment.

And yet there are those who believe that the ousted leftist government was moving towards the redemption of the common man, simple because it sloganeered as a progressive movement.

Were it not for the democratic military force, this half continent would today be the southern end of the Peiping-Havana Axis.

Mrs. Arthur Harvey Hobbs

Miss Clara Thompson Smith Is Bride Of Arthur H. Hobbs

In the atmosphere of reverence and quiet dignity of the Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian Church, the marriage of Miss Clara Thompson Smith, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Michau Smith, and Arthur Harvey Hobbs was solemnized at 4:30 Saturday afternoon, August 7. The Rev. F. Edward Watson read the marriage service. White blossoms--gladiolas, stock and chrysanthemums--composed a single altar bouquet. Arrangements of the same flowers were on either side of the chancel and flanked by candalabra. The chancel itself was lighted by many candles.

The musical program presented by Mrs. Elmer Poage, organist, and Mrs. Frank Hearne, vocalist and aunt of the bride, began at four o'clock. Included in the repertoire of organ music were "Andante Contabile" by Tchaichovsky, "Serenade" by Gounod, "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes," "Salute d'Amour" by Elgar, "A Dream" by Bartlett. Mrs. Hearne sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" by Stults, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "I Do Not Know."

A cousin of the bride, Nell Celeste Hearne, lighted the candles down the bridal aisle. She wore a pale gold dress featuring a flat bow on the yoke, and A-line skirt with a center front pleat. She wore a carnation wrist corsage.

The wedding proper began with the processional cross carried by the bride's brother, Richard Smith, Jr. The altar candles were lighted by the acolyes, Frank Smith, younger brother of the bride, and Gary Whitworth. Mrs. Hearne sang the wedding hymn, "O Perfect Love."

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hobbs of Freeman, Mo., chose as his best man Edward Esther, Lebanon, Mo. The ushers were Richard Smith and David Blanton, Jr., cousin of the bride.

The bride's attendants were Miss Sarah Wensel, a former room-mate, Mrs. Cecil Krosp, matron of honor, and Miss Katie Blanton, maid of honor, both cousins of the bride. They wore floor-length dresses in varying shades of gold and carried bouquets of mum daisies and ivy. The bridesmaids took their places to the lovely strains of Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song."

The bride entered to the familiar and traditional wedding march from "Lohengrin." The bride, given in marriage by her father, was petite and beautiful in her wedding gown created by Rosemarye of ivory taffeta softly layered with silk organza. The gown featured a collar of duchess rose point lace worn by four generations of brides in the family including her mother and her grandmother. This lace was attached with a tracery of hand blown beads and rose buds of silk organza. Below the small bodice was a narrowly shaped floor-length skirt bordered in lace and a separate overskirt of organza bellowed to a chapel train. Her chapel-length veil of silk illusion fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. This veil was first worn by the bride's aunt, the late Polly Hearne Blanton. The bride's bouquet was of white roses from the garden of her uncle, David Blanton.

The bride's mother wore a beige lace dress and her flowers were orchids. The groom's mother wore a blue silk and lace sheath dress and a corsage of orchids.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Smith gave a reception and buffet supper at their home for friends and family. Mrs. Van Sharp of New Madrid was in charge of the reception. Mrs. Dale White assisted with the reception. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. George M. Hearne, grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Hearne and their daughter Nell Celeste, Mrs. Richard Mintree, Mr. and Mrs. David Albers, Mrs. Cline W. Owen, and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. McCarthy, all of Poplar Bluff; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hax Smith, paternal grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. L. W. Dowlen, her aunt, of Coral Gables, Fla.; Louis H. Smith, Jr., the bride's uncle from Tampa, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hobbs, the groom's parents, Freeman, Mo.; Dr. and Mrs. Edward Cannon and their daughters Maida, Genie and Elizabeth; Edmonstone Field Thompson and his son and daughter, Edmonstone, Jr. and Tandy Christy Thompson; Mrs. Frank A. Thompson, Frank Thompson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William A. Borders; the Misses Marianne Rouse, Patricia Thompson, Betty East, Susan Moore; Terry McReynolds, and Robert Blair, all of St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. James Krosp and daughter Sandy of Millington, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Oliver, Dr. H. O. Grauel, John Bierk and Mrs. Earl Collins of Cape Girardeau; Mrs. C. J. Wensel, Excelsior Springs, Miss Janice Wier, Independence; Mr. and Mrs. James Orvis, Jefferson City; and Richard Biederman.

After the wedding rehearsal Friday evening, Mr. Watson conducted a solemn and impressive communion service for the two families and the wedding party. David Blanton served at this service. Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs were hosts at the rehearsal dinner served at 7:30 at the Holiday Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lee Jones

Miss Opal Katherine Jones Is Bride Of Daniel Jones

In an impressive wedding Friday, August sixth, at seven o'clock in the evening, Miss Opal Katherine Jones exchanged wedding vows with Daniel Lee Jones. Miss Jones is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Jones, 215 Miller Drive; Mr. Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn R. Jones, 403 Prosperity Street.

The Reverend James Fitch read the vows of the double ring ceremony at Fellowship Baptist Church. Bob Williamson, organist, furnished the prenuptial music and accompanied Mrs. James Fitch as she sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride chose a floor-length creation of Chantilly lace over satin. The bodice was styled with a scoop neckline accented with pearls and sequins. Three quarter - length lace sleeves also complemented the fitted bodice. A large bow attached at the back waist held chiffon streamers that flowed to the hemline.

A crown of pearls secured the bride's elbow-length veil of silk illusion. She carried a white Bible topped with purple orchids with pink satin ribbons tied in lovers' knots. The bride's only jewelry was a pearl pendant, a gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Gretta Hovis of Sikeston, a close friend of the couple, attended the former Miss Jones as maid of honor. She was attired in a pink street-length dress fashioned with a lace bodice and chiffon skirt. She carried an arrangement of orchids on a small white Bible with pink streamers tied in lovers' knots.

Jenny Wasem, Bride-Elect Of Mr. Strickland, Honored

CHARLESTON -- Miss Jenny Wasem, bride-elect of Robert Strickland of Sikeston, was complimented Saturday afternoon, August 7, with a shower at which the residents of Hunter Street where Miss Wasem lives were guests. Mrs. Ernest Vowels, 217 Hunter, was hostess with Mrs. Duane Billingsly as co-hostess.

The refreshment table, covered with a white cloth and overlaid with pink net that was draped and caught up at the corners with pink roses, held an arrangement of pink roses and baby's breath. Punch, cake, nuts and mints were served by Mrs. Pam LaPlant and Miss Linda Strickland.

Miss Wasem wore a black and white costume suit and was assisted in opening her gifts by Pam LaPlant. The gifts were placed on a round table that was draped with pink net and caught up with pink rosebuds.

Among the 36 guests attending were the honoree's mother, Mrs. Carl E. Wasem; her sister, Mrs. Howard Thilenius II of Perryville; and her fiance's mother, Mrs. Marion Strickland and daughters Linda and Joyce Strickland of Sikeston.

Dyer-Lynn Vows To Be Exchanged

CHARLESTON -- Mr. and Mrs. David H. Dyer announce the engagement of their daughter, Carolyn to Lt. Larry Lynn of the U. S. Army. Plans for the wedding are incomplete.

With a circular motion, brush a soft ball of tissue paper on rain spots on felt. This removes the spots quickly.

Don Davis, a close friend of the couple, served as best man. The men in the wedding party wore dark suits and white carnation boutonnieres.

The bride's mother wore a blue whip cream dress with white accessories. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a brown linen dress trimmed in beige which she complemented with beige accessories. Both mothers wore purple orchid corsages.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church hall. The bride's table was covered in white and centered with an arrangement of blue flowers. Blue candles appointed each side of the arrangement.

The newly wed couple took a trip to Big Springs. For traveling, Mrs. Jones wore a sleeveless dress of blue whip cream. She completed her attire with white accessories.

They are now at home at 403 Prosperity in Sikeston. Mr. Jones is employed by A. & W. Root Beer Drive In.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Rita Calbert of Lilbourn and Lester Johnson of Parma.

Daughters Of Isabella Meet

The St. Francis Xavier Circle, Daughters of Isabella, held their regular monthly business meeting at the Knights of Columbus hall on Wednesday, August 4. Regent Mrs. Wilma Rogers opened the meeting with Mrs. Josephine Schwab leading the opening prayer. Sixteen members were present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. A letter from the National Regent, Anna C. Walsh, was read. In it, she reminded the circle to give serious thought to the selection of a slate of officers to be elected in November.

The Hamburger fry scheduled for August 18 was postponed until September 15.

The following committee was appointed to serve for the business meeting in September: Mary Paylor, Laura Ann Sherman and Elaine Rennier.

The new password was given and for the good of the order, the regent read a portion of the minutes of the State Convention.

The meeting was closed with prayer by Father Staed, after which refreshments were served by the following committee. Mrs. Rose Ann Martin, Dorothy Donner and Mary Cooney assisted by Mary Schuchart.

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Dorothy MacLean, associate professor of women's physical education at the University of Washington, collects woodworking power and hand tools the way other women collect teacups.

She owns a jointer-planer, drill press, jigsaw, table saw, saber saw, drills and a variety of small tools. She uses them all in turning out mahogany furniture for her home.

In an impressive wedding Friday, August sixth, at seven o'clock in the evening, Miss Opal Katherine Jones exchanged wedding vows with Daniel Lee Jones. Miss Jones is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Jones, 215 Miller Drive; Mr. Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn R. Jones, 403 Prosperity Street.

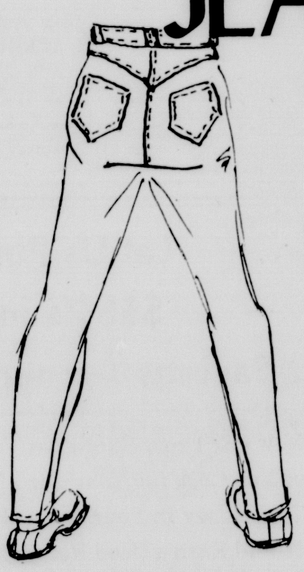

The Reverend James Fitch read the vows of the double ring ceremony at Fellowship Baptist Church. Bob Williamson, organist, furnished the prenuptial music and accompanied Mrs. James Fitch as she sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride chose a floor-length creation of Chantilly lace over satin. The bodice was styled with a scoop neckline accented with pearls and sequins. Three quarter - length lace sleeves also complemented the fitted bodice. A large bow attached at the back waist held chiffon streamers that flowed to the hemline.

A crown of pearls secured the bride's elbow-length veil of silk illusion. She carried a white Bible topped with purple orchids with pink satin ribbons tied in lovers' knots. The bride's only jewelry was a pearl pendant, a gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Gretta Hovis of Sikeston, a close friend of the couple, attended the former Miss Jones as maid of honor. She was attired in a pink street-length dress fashioned with a lace bodice and chiffon skirt. She carried an arrangement of orchids on a small white Bible with pink streamers tied in lovers' knots.

Jenny Wasem, Bride-Elect Of Mr. Strickland, Honored

CHARLESTON -- Miss Jenny Wasem, bride-elect of Robert Strickland of Sikeston, was complimented Saturday afternoon, August 7, with a shower at which the residents of Hunter Street where Miss Wasem lives were guests. Mrs. Ernest Vowels, 217 Hunter, was hostess with Mrs. Duane Billingsly as co-hostess.

The refreshment table, covered with a white cloth and overlaid with pink net that was draped and caught up at the corners with pink roses, held an arrangement of pink roses and baby's breath. Punch, cake, nuts and mints were served by Mrs. Pam LaPlant and Miss Linda Strickland.

Miss Wasem wore a black and white costume suit and was assisted in opening her gifts by Pam LaPlant. The gifts were placed on a round table that was draped with pink net and caught up with pink rosebuds.

Among the 36 guests attending were the honoree's mother, Mrs. Carl E. Wasem; her sister, Mrs. Howard Thilenius II of Perryville; and her fiance's mother, Mrs. Marion Strickland and daughters Linda and Joyce Strickland of Sikeston.

Dyer-Lynn Vows To Be Exchanged

CHARLESTON -- Mr. and Mrs. David H. Dyer announce the engagement of their daughter, Carolyn to Lt. Larry Lynn of the U. S. Army. Plans for the wedding are incomplete.

With a circular motion, brush a soft ball of tissue paper on rain spots on felt. This removes the spots quickly.

Don Davis, a close friend of the couple, served as best man. The men in the wedding party wore dark suits and white carnation boutonnieres.

The bride's mother wore a blue whip cream dress with white accessories. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a brown linen dress trimmed in beige which she complemented with beige accessories. Both mothers wore purple orchid corsages.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church hall. The bride's table was covered in white and centered with an arrangement of blue flowers. Blue candles appointed each side of the arrangement.

The newly wed couple took a trip to Big Springs. For traveling, Mrs. Jones wore a sleeveless dress of blue whip cream. She completed her attire with white accessories.

They are now at home at 403 Prosperity in Sikeston. Mr. Jones is employed by A. & W. Root Beer Drive In.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Rita Calbert of Lilbourn and Lester Johnson of Parma.

Daughters Of Isabella Meet

The St. Francis Xavier Circle, Daughters of Isabella, held their regular monthly business meeting at the Knights of Columbus hall on Wednesday, August 4. Regent Mrs. Wilma Rogers opened the meeting with Mrs. Josephine Schwab leading the opening prayer. Sixteen members were present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. A letter from the National Regent, Anna C. Walsh, was read. In it, she reminded the circle to give serious thought to the selection of a slate of officers to be elected in November.

The Hamburger fry scheduled for August 18 was postponed until September 15.

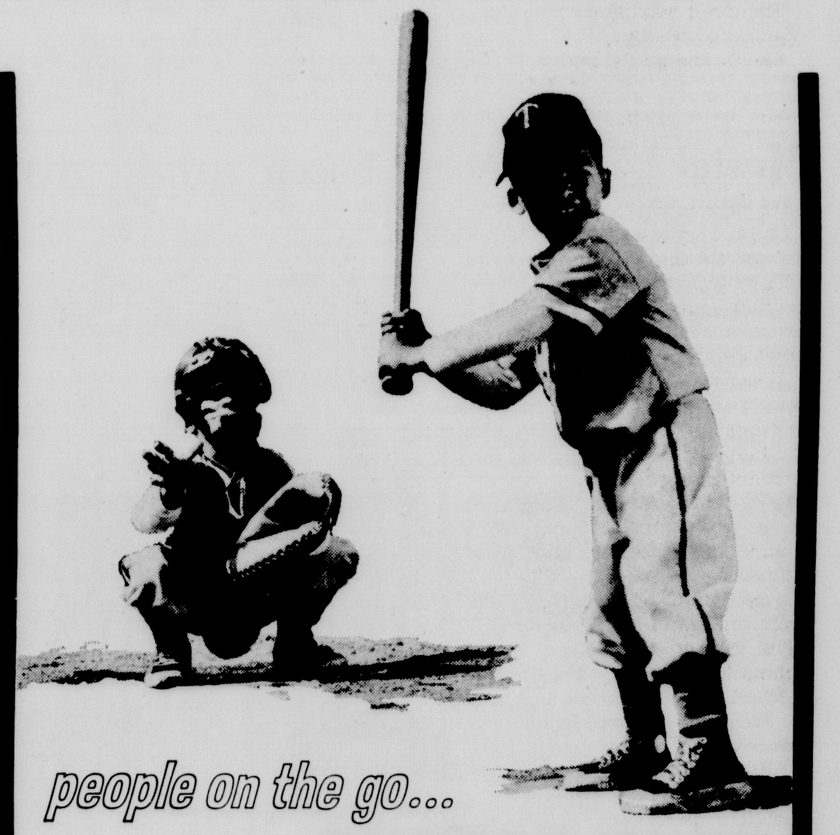

The following committee was appointed to serve for the business meeting in September: Mary Paylor, Laura Ann Sherman and Elaine Rennier.

The new password was given and for the good of the order, the regent read a portion of the minutes of the State Convention.

The meeting was closed with prayer by Father Staed, after which refreshments were served by the following committee. Mrs. Rose Ann Martin, Dorothy Donner and Mary Cooney assisted by Mary Schuchart.

Potlatch Edged In Extra Innings

Metz, Heath, McClain Slap Home Runs In 9-7 Decision

In extra innings Sikeston's Connie Mack team, Potlatch Forest, took a 9-7 upset from Wichita Falls, Tex., in last night's bout. Sikeston is not eliminated from the Connie Mack Regional however, because of the double-elimination tourney.

In the disappointing decision, Sikeston collected two runs in the first off Donnie Metz's homer with a man on base. Inning two proved to be in favor of Sikeston, as they pounded two hits to tally across one run. The third inning went scoreless for the Missouri state champions. In the next, Potlatch whipped a pair of hits and crossed home plate once. The next two frames were actionless except a single in the fifth. With a 7-5 deficit going into the last frame, Sikeston clipped off two runs on two homers by Hunter McClain and Chuck Heath. That tied the score 7-7 and forced the bout to travel into extra innings.

In the final frame, the strong Wichita Falls splashed two runs and held Sikeston to their earlier seven to break the tie and take the win.

Brant started on the mound for Potlatch nine and took aid from Crowley in the third. Gary Stallings took his place in the fourth and hurled the next four innings. After the seventh, Payne relieved Stallings and finished the serving. Gary Stallings, hurling four of the eight innings, was the losing pitcher. He, and his aid, handed the victors 10 hits and nine runs. Sikeston collected 8 hits, four from Dale Sexton, and seven tallies.

Today at 2 p.m. (CST) Potlatch faces Lamar, Colo., to decide whether they continue in the Regionals or not.

If they win they will draw to see what team they play tomorrow night.

NIGHT PROWLIN'. . . . . .

Daytime is for fishing and nighttime is for catching.

The average angler can do a lot of casting under a hot August sun without ending up with much to show for his efforts. In many areas, he'll soon discover that the local lads with experience are doing best during the hours most anglers are sleeping.

Night fishing is a different sport than the familiar day variety, comment the experts at Mercury outboards. And, they add, it requires slightly different equipment and tactics, plus the patience to develop nighttime skills.

Most beginners will have the least difficulty with a spin-cast reel. Conventional casting models are prone to backlash when a lure smacks into an unseen obstacle. Open-faced spinning designs give less casting trouble, but a lap full of wiry monofilament accidentally spilled is no fun to unsnarl in the dark.

Light may be a help or a hindrance, depending on the species sought. Many fish are attracted to a brightly lit area; others, notably bass, are usually considered wary of lights. Excessive use of a lantern spoils your night vision at a time when you need all the "see-ability" you can get.

Heavier lines for the pitch-black hours are recommended for two reasons: (1) they allow you to free snagged plugs more readily without barging right into fishing territory and disturbing the fish, and (2) the extra bulk and weight reduces casting distances so that overshooting a vague target is unlikely.

Noise at night is particularly disturbing, and boat commotion of the sharp, banging variety is the worst. Fish seem to be more keenly attuned to sounds of danger at night than they are during the day.

Even though visibility is reduced to minimal levels, black is the universal lure color these nights -- deferring, of course, to local preferences. Big plastic worms or jigs and eels that bump the bottom are always good. Surface lures in a size larger than usual often give excellent results.

The Joe Looney Story Could Be Detroits Story

AP - The Joe Don Looney story could very well be the story of the Detroit Lions in 1965. Coach Harry Gilmer is giving Joe Don every chance to make it big as a half back.

Despite Looney's curfew-breaking escapade that resulted in a $250 fine and his problems at New York and Baltimore, Gilmer is ready to start from scratch with this unpredictable lad from Oklahoma.

If Looney settles down into the running back many think he can be, the Lions will have a solid ground game to supplement their air arm. If Looney continues to stray off the reservation, the Lions may be in trouble.

The addition of Ron Kramer, the great end who played out his option at Green Bay, has given the Lions new strength. Although the former all-league end starter working out as a defensive man, most observers figure he will wind up on offense. However, Jim Gibbons, the current tight end who was the Lions' most valuable player in 1964, isn't about to move over.

Gilmer, trying hard to dissipate the country club atmosphere that has surrounded the club in this plush Cranbrook School camp, has set an 1 a.m. curfew.

Gilmer, understudy to Sammy Baugh at Washington for years, has made up his mind to settle on a No. 1 quarterback instead of shuttling back and forth between Milt Plum and Earl Morrall.

"I'm giving both of them an honest shot at the job," said Gilmer.

Gilmer hopes Tom Nowatzke, the No. 1 draftee from Indiana can press the veteran fullback Nick Pietrosante. If Looney fails, the halfbacks probably will be Dan Lewis and Tom Watkins.

The Lions have a fine set of veteran receivers in Gail Cogdill, Terry Barr, Pat Studstill, Gibbons and Kramer.

J. D. Smith and Daryl Sanders at the tackles, John Gordy and Jim Simon or John Gonzaga at the guards and Bob Scholtz or Bob Whitlow at center form a front line that Gilmer says has been "maligned unjustly."

With two 30-plus veterans defensive ends in Darris McBride and Sam Williams, Gilmer hopes for relief from rookies Larry Hand of Appalachian State and Jerry Rush of Michigan State. Alex Karras and 6-foot-5, 300-pound Roger Brown handle the middle.

Joe Schmidt is back again after another shoulder operation to play middle linebacker with Wally Hilgenberg behind him. Eernie Clark and Wayne Walker will flank Schmidt.

The deep defense, weakened by the retirement of Yale Lary, will have Bobby Thompson and Dick LeBeau at the corners and Bruce Maher at one safety. Either Wayne Rasmussen or Dick Compton will handle Larry's free safety position.

Walker will do the place kicking and Looney or Morrall the punting.

All-Stars Edge Dexter At PB

The Sikeston All-Stars journeyed to Poplar Bluff last night for the Poplar Bluff Invitational tournament and overcame Dexter 5-4 in six full inning of little league action.

Dexter was defeated in the contest, but they punched out only one less hit than Sikeston did.

Schatzley brought home the victory for Sikeston allowing five runs and eight hits. Not only in the serving end of the bout did Schatzley star, but in the slugging end too. Of three attempts, he scattered the ball for three singles in a row.

Sikeston looked, from actions in the first frame, that they were going to be bombed throughout the game. In that frame Sikeston was controlled with three straight strikeouts from the starting hurler, Guehhle. Lee, however, relieved him to take the defeat.

However, in the second, the Dexter crossed the plate three times on two hits. The All-Stars did about the same, except one run less. Inning three brought just a run to both teams. With Dexter in the top spot and the fourth inning up, Sikeston ripped two doubles and two singles to cross the plate three times. Dexter added a run to their roster in that frame. Sikeston held Dexter scoreless in the top of the sixth to capture the 5-4 edge.

Jones grabbed the spotlight with Schatzley in enjoying a two for three performance. Rendleman and Williams collected two apiece for their team.

Pro Stars Compete In PGA

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) -- A legendary figure from the recent but dimming past is challenging the modern day idols for one of golf's most coveted prizes.

Ben Hogan, a little thick around the middle and with thinning hair but still hawk-eyed and purposeful of stride, was no more than a lesser member of the cast today as the elite field played the first round of the 47th Professional Golfers' Association Championship at Laurel Valley.

The stars of the production are the younger set, glamorized by the television age: heavily favored Jack Nicklaus, power-hitting Masters champion on a torrid triumphant streak; South Africia's Gary Palyer, U. S. Open champion with the dramatic touch; Bobby Nichols, handsome defender of the PGA crown; Arnold Palmer, overwhelming popular choice on his home grounds; carefree Tony Lema, and smooth-stroking Billy Casper.

"I'm a part-time player now, from March to August," Hogan, who'll be 53 Friday, said after his wind-up practice round Wednesday. "And this is only my fourth competition this year. I made the Masters, the Colonial at home in Fort Worth and Philadelphia last week."

The small, muscular-armed Texan, winner of two PGAs and every other major title in golf, was pleased with his incoming nine after "a horrible front nine."

"Over-all I haven't been playing well. And this is a tough course for me. It favors the long hitters," the precisionist commented, then added ruefully, "but I never saw one that didn't."

And the long-ball is Nicklaus' forte. The Ohio Strongboy has won $44,300 with victories in the Thunderbird and Philadelphia Classics the past two weeks for 1965 earnings of $114,000 and has been impressive over Laurel Valley's 7,090-yard, par 7- layout. His tee shots and long irons--always outstanding --have been even more so, and his short game is on target.

Nichols, also a slugger and also going well, should be primed for a big effort.

Player, Lema and Casper are others in winning form. Not so Palmer, Laurel Valley's home pro and an idolized native of these western Pennsylvania highlands. He's slipped from golf's uppermost echelon--but he seems keyed up for this vital test.

Laurel Valley's hilly course, par 36 out and 35 in, is drying out in the warm weather after a week of rain.

Twenty former PGA championships, including three-time winner Sam Snead in addition to Hogan, Nicklaus, Player and Nichols, are in the field of 167.

After Friday's second round the field will be chopped to the low 70 and ties for the concluding 18-holes Saturday and Sunday.

The finishing holes on the final two days will be televised ABC.

Braves Win, Cards Drop Fifth Straight

The St. Louis Cardinals stumbled to their fifth straight defeat Wednesday night as the Braves beat them 5-2 at Milwaukee.

The Kansas City Athletics dropped both games of a doubleheader at Detroit with the Tigers winning 5-2 and 5-4.

Two home runs by Hank Aaron powered the Braves to the victory over St. Louis.

Aaron's second homer broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning.

Bob Skinner had blasted a two-run homer for the Cardinals in the fourth to deadlock the game.

Ray Washburn, the Cardinal starting pitcher, dropped to a 7-8 record for the season with the loss.

Detroit's second game victory came in the 10th inning when Don Werts drove in the winning run with a single after reliever Jack Aker hit two batters with pitches.

The Tigers jumped into the lead in the fifth when Willie Horton hit a three-run homer. Don Demeter hit a solo homer in the sixth before the Athletics charged back.

Rene Lachemann's three-run homer chased Detroit starter Mickey Lolich in the seventh before the Athletics tied the score off ex-teammate Orlando Pena in the eighth on Santiago a pair of walks.

The Tigers wrapped up the opener with a five-run third inning, capped by a grand slam homer by Dick McAuliffe.

Diego Segui 5-12 will pitch for the Athletics today and Hank Aguirre 10-8 starts for the Tigers.

Tracy Stallard 8-5 starts for the Redbirds tonight at Milwaukee. Don Blasingame, 14-8 will pitch for the Braves.

Noise at night is particularly disturbing, and boat commotion of the sharp, banging variety is the worst. Fish seem to be more keenly attuned to sounds of danger at night than they are during the day.

Even though visibility is reduced to minimal levels, black is the universal lure color these nights -- deferring, of course, to local preferences. Big plastic worms or jigs and eels that bump the bottom are always good. Surface lures in a size larger than usual often give excellent results.

The Joe Looney Story Could Be Detroits Story

AP - The Joe Don Looney story could very well be the story of the Detroit Lions in 1965. Coach Harry Gilmer is giving Joe Don every chance to make it big as a half back.

Despite Looney's curfew-breaking escapade that resulted in a $250 fine and his problems at New York and Baltimore, Gilmer is ready to start from scratch with this unpredictable lad from Oklahoma.

If Looney settles down into the running back many think he can be, the Lions will have a solid ground game to supplement their air arm. If Looney continues to stray off the reservation, the Lions may be in trouble.

The addition of Ron Kramer, the great end who played out his option at Green Bay, has given the Lions new strength. Although the former all-league end starter working out as a defensive man, most observers figure he will wind up on offense. However, Jim Gibbons, the current tight end who was the Lions' most valuable player in 1964, isn't about to move over.

Gilmer, trying hard to dissipate the country club atmosphere that has surrounded the club in this plush Cranbrook School camp, has set an 1 a.m. curfew.

Gilmer, understudy to Sammy Baugh at Washington for years, has made up his mind to settle on a No. 1 quarterback instead of shuttling back and forth between Milt Plum and Earl Morrall.

"I'm giving both of them an honest shot at the job," said Gilmer.

Gilmer hopes Tom Nowatzke, the No. 1 draftee from Indiana can press the veteran fullback Nick Pietrosante. If Looney fails, the halfbacks probably will be Dan Lewis and Tom Watkins.

The Lions have a fine set of veteran receivers in Gail Cogdill, Terry Barr, Pat Studstill, Gibbons and Kramer.

J. D. Smith and Daryl Sanders at the tackles, John Gordy and Jim Simon or John Gonzaga at the guards and Bob Scholtz or Bob Whitlow at center form a front line that Gilmer says has been "maligned unjustly."

With two 30-plus veterans defensive ends in Darris McBride and Sam Williams, Gilmer hopes for relief from rookies Larry Hand of Appalachian State and Jerry Rush of Michigan State. Alex Karras and 6-foot-5, 300-pound Roger Brown handle the middle.

Joe Schmidt is back again after another shoulder operation to play middle linebacker with Wally Hilgenberg behind him. Eernie Clark and Wayne Walker will flank Schmidt.

The deep defense, weakened by the retirement of Yale Lary, will have Bobby Thompson and Dick LeBeau at the corners and Bruce Maher at one safety. Either Wayne Rasmussen or Dick Compton will handle Larry's free safety position.

Walker will do the place kicking and Looney or Morrall the punting.

All-Stars Edge Dexter At PB

The Sikeston All-Stars journeyed to Poplar Bluff last night for the Poplar Bluff Invitational tournament and overcame Dexter 5-4 in six full inning of little league action.

Dexter was defeated in the contest, but they punched out only one less hit than Sikeston did.

Schatzley brought home the victory for Sikeston allowing five runs and eight hits. Not only in the serving end of the bout did Schatzley star, but in the slugging end too. Of three attempts, he scattered the ball for three singles in a row.

Sikeston looked, from actions in the first frame, that they were going to be bombed throughout the game. In that frame Sikeston was controlled with three straight strikeouts from the starting hurler, Guehhle. Lee, however, relieved him to take the defeat.

However, in the second, the Dexter crossed the plate three times on two hits. The All-Stars did about the same, except one run less. Inning three brought just a run to both teams. With Dexter in the top spot and the fourth inning up, Sikeston ripped two doubles and two singles to cross the plate three times. Dexter added a run to their roster in that frame. Sikeston held Dexter scoreless in the top of the sixth to capture the 5-4 edge.

Jones grabbed the spotlight with Schatzley in enjoying a two for three performance. Rendleman and Williams collected two apiece for their team.

According to Italian governmental statistics, natives of that country spend more than $1 billion annually on tobacco.

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) -- A legendary figure from the recent but dimming past is challenging the modern day idols for one of golf's most coveted prizes.

Ben Hogan, a little thick around the middle and with thinning hair but still hawk-eyed and purposeful of stride, was no more than a lesser member of the cast today as the elite field played the first round of the 47th Professional Golfers' Association Championship at Laurel Valley.

The stars of the production are the younger set, glamorized by the television age: heavily favored Jack Nicklaus, power-hitting Masters champion on a torrid triumphant streak; South Africia's Gary Palyer, U. S. Open champion with the dramatic touch; Bobby Nichols, handsome defender of the PGA crown; Arnold Palmer, overwhelming popular choice on his home grounds; carefree Tony Lema, and smooth-stroking Billy Casper.

"I'm a part-time player now, from March to August," Hogan, who'll be 53 Friday, said after his wind-up practice round Wednesday. "And this is only my fourth competition this year. I made the Masters, the Colonial at home in Fort Worth and Philadelphia last week."

The small, muscular-armed Texan, winner of two PGAs and every other major title in golf, was pleased with his incoming nine after "a horrible front nine."

"Over-all I haven't been playing well. And this is a tough course for me. It favors the long hitters," the precisionist commented, then added ruefully, "but I never saw one that didn't."

And the long-ball is Nicklaus' forte. The Ohio Strongboy has won $44,300 with victories in the Thunderbird and Philadelphia Classics the past two weeks for 1965 earnings of $114,000 and has been impressive over Laurel Valley's 7,090-yard, par 7- layout. His tee shots and long irons--always outstanding --have been even more so, and his short game is on target.

Nichols, also a slugger and also going well, should be primed for a big effort.

Player, Lema and Casper are others in winning form. Not so Palmer, Laurel Valley's home pro and an idolized native of these western Pennsylvania highlands. He's slipped from golf's uppermost echelon--but he seems keyed up for this vital test.

Laurel Valley's hilly course, par 36 out and 35 in, is drying out in the warm weather after a week of rain.

Twenty former PGA championships, including three-time winner Sam Snead in addition to Hogan, Nicklaus, Player and Nichols, are in the field of 167.

After Friday's second round the field will be chopped to the low 70 and ties for the concluding 18-holes Saturday and Sunday.

The finishing holes on the final two days will be televised ABC.

Braves Win, Cards Drop Fifth Straight

The St. Louis Cardinals stumbled to their fifth straight defeat Wednesday night as the Braves beat them 5-2 at Milwaukee.

The Kansas City Athletics dropped both games of a doubleheader at Detroit with the Tigers winning 5-2 and 5-4.

Two home runs by Hank Aaron powered the Braves to the victory over St. Louis.

Aaron's second homer broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning.

Bob Skinner had blasted a two-run homer for the Cardinals in the fourth to deadlock the game.

Ray Washburn, the Cardinal starting pitcher, dropped to a 7-8 record for the season with the loss.

Detroit's second game victory came in the 10th inning when Don Werts drove in the winning run with a single after reliever Jack Aker hit two batters with pitches.

The Tigers jumped into the lead in the fi[illegible] when Willie Horton hit a three-run homer. Don Demeter hit a solo homer in the sixth before the Athletics charged back.

Rene Lachemann's three-run homer chased Detroit starter Mickey Lolich in the seventh before the Athletics tied the score off ex-teammate Orlando Pena in the eighth on Santiago a pair of walks.

The Tigers wrapped up the opener with a five-run third inning, capped by a grand slam homer by Dick McAuliffe.

Diego Segui 5-12 will pitch for the Athletics today and Hank Aguirre 10-8 starts for the Tigers.

Tracy Stallard 8-5 starts for the Redbirds tonight at Milwaukee. Don Blasingame, 14-8 will pitch for the Braves.

PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

We labour, that. . . .we may be accepted of him. For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ. (II Corinthians 5: 9-10)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, may we give Thee the same place in our hearts that Thou has in the universe. Direct our labor, and our leisure, into Christ-approved channels. We thank Thee for daily opportunities of being useful to others. Through us may they see Christ. In His Name. Amen.

To many flowery adjectives overly describe the trend of thought.

A loud whistle may signify approaching danger -- or just unabashed admiration.

Barriers hold distrust within while keeping out the light of understanding,

The bushy tail of a squirrel isn't just for balance--it's the living end of fashion.

If you are inclined to borrow trouble -- don't feel you are obligated to pay it back.

It's great to feel ten feet tall if you don't lose your head in the clouds.

Weighty problems are shifted from the weak to the strong with unerring course of wisdom.

Patience may be lost in a cloud of distrust--and found in the light of understanding.

Smiling eyes are mirrored pools of friendliness.

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: If I read another article which describes the American wife as a pampered, spoiled, pleasure-seeking parasite I will throw up.

Who started this preposterous lie anyway? Why do magazine writers get away with mass produced garbage? I'll bet the "Spoiled Wife" articles are written by cigar-smoking men and bachelors at that.

You'd think the invention of the washing machine and the vacuum sweeper liberated women from housework for all time. Just because a wife doesn't make her own soap and cook on a wood stove any more doesn't mean she's sitting around the house reading novels and nibbling on bon bons. Women don't have to work as hard as they once did but neither do men.

The myth that the little woman is head of the house is the loudest laugh yet. Show me a wife who can watch the TV show of her choice when a ball game or a Western is on?

The American husband is the most spoiled, pampered, indulged male on the face of the earth. His mom begins the job and his wife inherits it. -- TEED OFF

Dear Teed: Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "No generalization is worth a damn-- including this one." And he was so right.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl who is only 10 years old and I don't have the problem yet, but I want to know how to solve it when it happens. A person who has the advice all ready is better off than the person who has to start hunting for advice after things happen.

My question is when a boy comes over to your house how do you get him to go home? Thank you ahead of time.--MISS MUFFET WRITING FROM HER TUFFET.

Dear Miss Muffet: You are looking forward to some high class worries. Most girls worry about how to get fellows to come over and you are already worried about how to get them to go home.

When you think a boy has stayed long enough say, "We will have to continue this interesting visit another time because you have to go now."

Dear Ann Landers: I have a serious problem and I pray you will help me.

I dated a boy I will call Steve for two years. He was very possessive and suspicious and checked every move I made. At first I was flattered, then he began to get on my nerves. Finally we broke up. (I should tell you that while we were going together we did some things we had no right to do. I'm lucky I didn't end up in a home for unwed mothers.)

Now, three years later, I am happily married to a man who knows all about Steve and me. Never once has he thrown it up to me, so this is not my problem. What I am worried about is this: Steve has moved back to town and is seeing the same friends we used to know together. I'm scared to death he will tell them about us.

Should I call Steve and beg him to keep quiet? --REGRETS

Dear Regrets: Don't call him or he'll have one more thing to say. A gentleman never tells and a heel never keeps quiet because a girl asks him to. Your best bet is to forget the past and hope Steve does the same.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far to Go," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

COSMETICS CAN CAUSE SKIN TROUBLE

New York, N. Y. -- If the tender skin of your eyelid or upper neck becomes irritated suddenly, the culprit may be a cosmetic, and not necessarily one applied directly to the affected area. Two New York dermatologists warned recently that nail polish, hair coloring, eye shadow--any of the numerous powders and paints designed to bedazzle the beholder --can be the cause of skin allergies, irritation, and damage to hair and nails. They recommend that women have themselves patch tested by a physician to ferret out the cause of the irritation, and then switch to another beauty brand.

ORAL CONTRACEPTIVE MAKES HAPPIER FAMILIES

Campton, Ky.--One of the most potent weapons in the war on poverty is the oral contraceptive pill. This is the view of Dr. Paul F. Maddox of Campton, Kentucky, who for three and a half years has been conducting a birth-control clinic in one of the most poverty-stricken sections of Appalachia. His patients, mostly white farm women, keep coming back for "the pill," with the result that the birth rate in the county has dropped a whopping 21.5 per cent since 1962. The mothers, says the doctor, "feel more hopeful now that they don't fear pregnancy; they feel they can do a better job of raising the children they already have."

TREATING THE UNBORN BABY

Greenwich, Conn.--A baby girl weighing four pounds, 14 ounces was born prematurely at Greenwich Hospital, received a blood transfusion for a Rh blood factor problem within one hour of birth, and was discharged 18 days later, alert and well.

The remarkable thing about this "preemie" is that she had also received a blood transfusion before birth, when she was a 32 1/2 week-old fetus inside her mother's uterus.

This infant is among the very few human beings ever treated in utero, an astonishing medical feat first accomplished in 1963 by the New Zealand physician, Dr. A. W. Liley. This breakthrough has already saved more than 100 babies.

EIFFEL ADDITION—A new feature has been added to Paris' famed landmark, the Eiffel Tower. The observation platform guard rail is now topped off with in-curving steel spikes to thwart would-be suicide leapers.

TOOTH NEGLECT IS HEALTH PROBLEM

Washington, D. C.--Almost 20 per cent of all Americans between the ages of 18 and 79 have no permanent teeth, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. And almost 10 per cent have natural teeth in one jaw only!

PAGING GREAT-GRANDMOTHER: PIERCED EARS ARE BACK!

NEW YORK - Shades of our great-grandmothers, pierced ears are now the last word in chic.

If you con't have those tiny little holes in your ears from which to dangle earrings, better get busy and acquire them without delay. However, if you don't want to go through the discomfort of piercing, the costume jewelry designers have thoughtfully created earrings with the "pierced" look. New designation for these latter earrings is "chicken" -- for the gals who can't quite face up to piercing.

Teen-agers are responsible for this new look in ear ornaments, according to Suzanne Lane, fashion adviser for Woolworth's. Miss Lane says that these days teen-agers are setting the fashion pace for the adults.

Turn-about or reversible earrings are another departure in constume jewelry. These earrings have large simulated pear or other stones on one side and a small stone on the other so that they may be worn either way.

Reverting also to Great-Grandmother's era are pendants and the expansion bracelets beloved of our feminine ancestors to emphasize a small wrist. These modern expansion bracelets, however, have a romantic twist. Beneath the clasp there's space for the boy friend's picture.

The "real gold" look is the watchword for smart costume jewelry this season, according to Woolworth's. This gold jewelry teams well with the new high-fashion colors -- tangerine, royal, ruby and the family of warm browns for which gold is the perfect accent. Bright prints are important in the fall fashion picture and call for equally important jewelry; "chunky" is the work for it.

Novelty watches have caught on and swing from slender chains around the neck. Bracelet watches are in new designs and shapes and the friendship ring is becoming a must with the teen-age set.

Diplomatic Stalemate. Polygamy poses its own problems. At a Manhattan cocktail party, a United Nations delegate from a small West African county complained of his loneliness. "Back home I have three wives," he explained sadly, "but my country cannot afford to send them all with me. And I cannot afford to pick just one of them."

PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

We labour, that. . . .we may be accepted of him. For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ. (II Corinthians 5: 9-10)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, may we give Thee the same place in our hearts that Thou has in the universe. Direct our labor, and our leisure, into Christ-approved channels. We thank Thee for daily opportunities of being useful to others. Through us may they see Christ. In His Name. Amen.

To many flowery adjectives overly describe the trend of thought.

A loud whistle may signify approaching danger -- or just unabashed admiration.

Barriers hold distrust within while keeping out the light of understanding,

The bushy tail of a squirrel isn't just for balance--it's the living end of fashion.

If you are inclined to borrow trouble -- don't feel you are obligated to pay it back.

It's great to feel ten feet tall if you don't lose your head in the clouds.

Weighty problems are shifted from the weak to the strong with unerring course of wisdom.

Patience may be lost in a cloud of distrust--and found in the light of understanding.

COSMETICS CAN CAUSE SKIN TROUBLE

New York, N. Y. -- If the tender skin of your eyelid or upper neck becomes irritated suddenly, the culprit may be a cosmetic, and not necessarily one applied directly to the affected area. Two New York dermatologists warned recently that nail polish, hair coloring, eye shadow--any of the numerous powders and paints designed to bedazzle the beholder --can be the cause of skin allergies, irritation, and damage to hair and nails. NEW YORK - Shades of our great-grandmothers, pierced ears are now the last word in chic.

If you con't have those tiny little holes in your ears from which to dangle earrings, better get busy and acquire them without delay. However, if you don't want to go through the discomfort of piercing, the costume jewelry designers have thoughtfully created earrings with the "pierced" look. New designation for these latter earrings is "chicken" -- for the gals who can't quite face up to piercing.

Teen-agers are responsible for this new look in ear ornaments, according to Suzanne Lane, fashion adviser for Woolworth's. Miss Lane says that these days teen-agers are setting the fashion pace for the adults.

Turn-about or reversible earrings are another departure in costume jewelry. These earrings have large simulated pear or other stones on one side and a small stone on the other so that they may be worn either way.

Reverting also to Great-Grandmother's era are pendants and the expansion bracelets beloved of our feminine ancestors to emphasize a small wrist. These modern expansion bracelets, however, have a romantic twist. Beneath the clasp there's space for the boy friend's picture.

The "real gold" look is the watchword for smart costume jewelry this season, according to Woolworth's. This gold jewelry teams well with the new high-fashion colors -- tangerine, royal, ruby and the family of warm browns for which gold is the perfect accent. Bright prints are important in the fall fashion picture and call for equally important jewelry; "chunky" is the work for it.

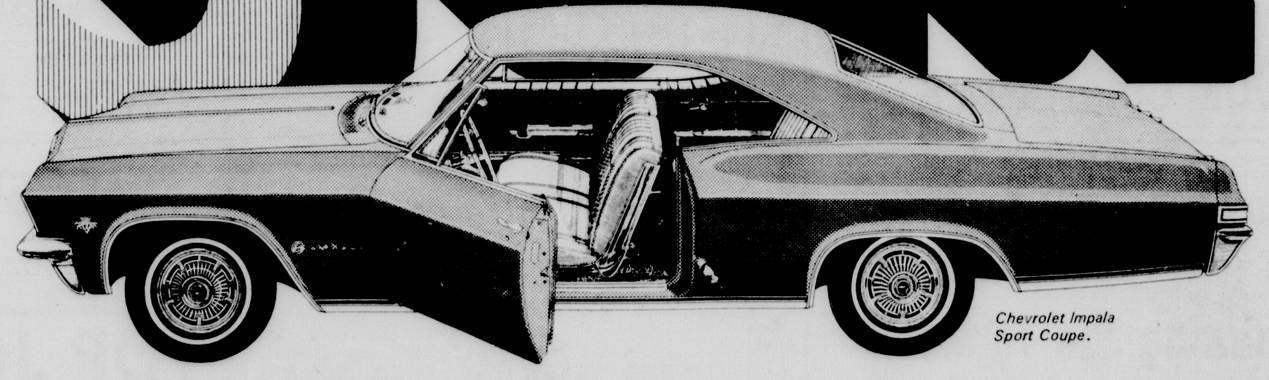

Novelty watches have caught on and swing from slender chains around the neck. Bracelet watches are in new designs and shapes and the friendship ring is becoming a must with the teen-age set.

Diplomatic Stalemate. Polygamy poses its own problems. At a Manhattan cocktail party, a United Nations delegate from a small West African county complained of his loneliness. "Back home I have three wives," he explained sadly, "but my country cannot afford to send them all with me. And I cannot afford to pick just one of them."

Eliminating Poverty, Major Hearnes' Goal

BLOOMFIELD -- The elimination of poverty is a major goal of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, he told an audience at Bloomfield Friday evening.

"If I could be said to be dedicated to one goal that (elimination of poverty) would be my choice," the governor declared. "For I am convinced that the minds and hearts of men cannot be fed until their stomachs have stilled the pangs of hunger."

"We must help our poor plan and shape their own destiny," the governor declared. "This, I think, is the crux of our dilemma of the poor. We have not helped the poor to help themselves."

Bloomfield dedicated its new AMVETS headquarters at a ceremony and feast that featured the visit of Governor Hearnes who officially cut the ribbon opening the new veterans' facility.

The Governor, making his first visit to Bloomfield as governor, also spoke at the Ceremonies following the feast of fish and hush puppies.

It was a gala but a busy day for the Amvets.

The Governor was introduced by Rep. Tom Baker. In his address, the Governor departed from his text to praise Baker for his work in the recent session of the Legislation and for his work for Stoddard county. His praise drew applause from the large crowd.

The Governor and his family arrived in Stoddard county at the Dexter municipal airport where he was met by Representative Baker, Bill Peoppelmeyer, commander of the Amvets and officials of Bloomfield and Dexter.

He then joined a motorcade for the trip to Bloomfield and the ceremonies.

His first act in Bloomfield was to inspect the new Amvets post home, and he praised those who had planned it and built it. He also cut the ribbon to officially open the new hall. After the brief ceremonies here, attended by a small group of Amvets' officials, he went directly to city park where he addressed the crowd.

matter of fact

The pistol has been used as a small firearm since early in the 15th century. Tradition says the word originated from one of two sources. One school claims the word dates from Pistoia, a city in Italy where they say the weapon originated. The other holds that it comes from pistole, an ancient coin to the diameter of which it is said the earliest handguns were bored. Still others associate it with "pistallo," which means pommel, the common location of the weapon for mounted troops

Cole Heads Legion Post

DEXTER -- Kenady - Hanks Post 59, Inc., American Legion, conducted installation of officers Wednesday night.

Ross, Sgt. At Arms, E. P. Kirby, Service Officer, Oral Smith, Finance Officer [illegible], Trustee C. E. Nichols (three years).

Dr. Harry Goddard, fourteenth district commander was the principal speaker and installed 1966 officers.

Fastest breeding animals known are opossums, which produce young about 13 days after mating.

Jeffries Will Raise Funds

DEXTER -- L. E. Jeffress, has been selected Sioux district finance campaign chairman of the Southeast Missouri Council of the Boy Scouts, according to Yewell G. Lawrence, campaign chairman for the Southeast Missouri council.

He is now securing men to serve as chairman of the communities of this district. The Southeast Missouri council will conduct finance campaigns in the communities that do not have a United Fund.

[illegible] date of the campaign will be Oct. 19. Jeffress will hold a training meeting for all community personnel Sept. 14 at Bloomfield.

Fifty communities in the fourteen county area of the Southeast Missouri Council will have a goal of $20,000,000 to raise in October.

The council has more than 5,800 Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, and Explorers and more than 2,600 volunteer adults.

WANTED: WATER—Restaurants in New York City are forbidden to serve drinking water unless specifically requested. This drastic ruling symbolizes severity of the drought from the Gulf of Mexico northeast into New Brunswick, Canada. So critical is the situation indicated on Newsmap above, the Interior Department says that without abnormally heavy summer rainfall, water-supplying streams and wells may drop to all-time lows by October. Contrarily, water-levels of streams is excessive from Montana to the Great Lakes, with many floods in localities as far south as Texas.

Indonesia Expected To Step up Campaign

SINGAPORE (AP) — Indonesia is expected to step up its campaign to crush Malaysia now that Singapore has left the young federation.

President Sukarno is likely to View Singapore's separation Monday as a green light to step up military operations and an indication that Malaysia is on the rocks.

The "other war" in Southeast Asia probably will increase in gravity, with consequent increased demands on the British and Commonwealth forces who are Malaysia's chief protection.

"Malaysia can expect an onslaughter from Indonesia in the coming week," a military source said after the split in the federation was announced.

The source said Indonesia now is likely to shift its sights away from this big Southeast Asian city.

"The Indonesians might be tempted to have a go at British bases here," the source said. "But if they think they can get Singapore on their side — and Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew has said he wants to cooperate with Indonesia — they might call a temporary halt to their attacks on Singapore."

Other military sources consider Singapore's separation from Malaysia a psychological victory for Indonesia.

"Sukarno must be having a great laugh," one source said. "But we can expect him to take the utmost advantage of the separation militarily."

Most military authorities in Singapore - Britain's biggest base east of Suez — were pessimistic about the effect Singapore's separation from Malaysia will have on the morale of those resisting Indonesian aggression.

"If they can't stick together internally, how are they going to fight an external enemy?" one source said.

"We can expect the Indonesians to take the utmost advantage of the split. They will now give confrontation everything they have got, because they believe they have smelt the first sniff of victory.

"They have seen the first crack in Malaysia."

Military authorities believe Aug. 17, Indonesia's independence day, probably will spark the biggest, most determined attack yet on Malaysia. Aug. 31, Malaysia's independence day, is another likely date for attack.

On the two independence days last year Sukarno sent paratroopers and other forces into the Malaysian mainland. Both these incursions were crushed by security forces — Malaysians, British, Australians and New Zealanders.

Since then, Sukarno has sent numerous guerrilla teams into mainland Malaya. In recent months he has been concentrating on this island state of 1.8 million people.

Bombings became commonplace. Two weeks ago an attempt was made to blow up the entrance to the U.S. consulate. Sukarno threatened to turn Singapore into a "sea of flames" if Britain stepped up aggression against Indonesia, as he put it. Indonesian Defense Minister Abdul Haris Nasution said Singapore must be destroyed before Malaysia could be crushed.

Sukarno will probably now shift his sights from Singapore to the Malayan mainland and Malaysia's Borneo states of Sarawak and Sabah.

The Indonesians are expected to land regular troops and infiltrators in southern Malaya by boat. They may try to drop paratroops into certain areas on the peninsula.

Some military observers believe they might use guided missiles against strategic military bases. A recent report said the Soviet Union has supplied Indonesia 12 gunboats armed with surface-to-surface missiles capable of carrying atomic warheads.

In Borneo, the Indonesians are expected to send more troops across the jungle border and to speed up their attempts to stir up internal trouble.

They have allies in Sarawak, where some 25,000 Chinese are believed to be pro-Peking, anti-Malaysia and prepared for armed revolt.

Indonesia recently stepped up its training of Chinese from Sarawak on its side of the border in guerrilla warfare. Recently Indonesian regulars led a group of Chinese Communists in an attack on a police post. Nine people were killed, including the brother of Sarawak's chief minister.

PRAYER FOR MY SMALL SON

I DO NOT ask that he shall ever be
Of handsome countenance, distinguished mien,
But, Lord, that in his face there may be seen
A holy faith, a shining love for Thee!
And, Lord, I do not ask that he be given
An athlete's build or an unusual height,
But when he kneels to pray, that in those bright,
Transcendent moments he may reach to Heaven!

Johnson Loves to Surprise Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whether he's in a bathrobe or a rose garden, President Johnson loves to surprise when he names a man for a big job.

And secrecy about the announcement before Johnson makes it! That's become a byword at the White House.

It goes so far that even those closest to Johnson, like Bill D. Moyers, his very able press secretary, sometimes appear left in the dark about who's getting the prize.

While this technique saves an appointee the embarrassment of public speculation about his merits for a job before he gets it, it also assures Johnson the maximum publicity.

But so far the men Johnson has picked for the highest government posts have met with wide approval. And so have most of those he's named to jobs a notch or several notches lower.

Sometimes Johnson may delay for months in making up his mind, which might indicate he has searched everywhere for suggestions on the best possible man and then slowly winnowed the possibilities.

But there are times when he apparently decides in a hurry, which he seems to have done in the case of Abe Fortas, whom he appointed to the Supreme Court, although since Fortas was his friend and helper for 30 years there was plenty of time to figure the right place for him.

When Robert F. Kennedy resigned as attorney general last September to run for the Senate, his No. 2 man, Nicholas Katzenbach, took charge of the Justice Department.

Katzenbach seemed a likely choice for Kennedy's job. He was an able lawyer, a legal scholar, a former professor of law at the University of Chicago, and he had made a name as a fighter for civil rights.

But Johnson delayed for months. Then on Jan. 28 he invited Katzenbach and his wife to dinner at the White House.

Katzenbach said later the President was ill in bed with a cold but got up, put on a bathrobe, joined his guests and Mrs. Johnson at dinner, and there broke the news to Katzenbach that he would be the new attorney general.

Perhaps Johnson searched for advice before picking a successor to Adlai E. Stevenson, who died July 14, as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. But on July 20 he named Supreme Court Jsstice Arthur J. Goldberg.

In doing so, Johnson combined drama and surprise for the greatest possible publicity mileage. There had been a multitude of guesses about the new ambassador, but nobody seemed to have thought of Goldberg.

At about 10:30 a.m. on the 20th, reporters were led into the White House rose garden to watch Johnson greet some U.S. ambassadors back from Africa for consultation.

When this was over Johnson turned back to his office, saying over his shoulder to the newsmen: "I'll be back in a moment." And he was.

But with him he had Goldberg, Mrs. Goldberg, and their son, Robert. Then Johnson announced Goldberg had "accepted the call of duty," given up his lifetime seat on the Supreme Court and would be the new ambassador.

The next question: Who'd get Goldberg's place on the court? Some of the guesses had the job going to a woman, to a Negro, to Fortas, and to others. Fortas was the one most often mentioned.

The day after Goldberg's appointment, Moyers was asked about Goldberg's successor. He said: "I have seen all the names quoted in the press and I don't think any of those are names that the President is giving consideration to."

Then Johnson chose his nationally televised news conference on July 28 to say he had picked Fortas.

It has been reported that Johnson asked Fortas, a famous lawyer with long experience in government, to take Goldberg's job within an hour or so after asking Goldberg to go to the United Nations.

MAN OF SORROWS

CHRIST claims our help in many a strange disguise,
Now fever ridden on a bed He lies;
Homeless He wanders now beneath the stars;
Now counts the number of His prison bars,
No need have we to climb the heavenly stairs
To look upon His wounded feet and hands;
In every man that suffers He, the Man of Sorrows, stands.

Writhing to Rascals Chic at the Hamptons

THE HAMPTONS, N.Y. (AP) — Last year the really chic thing to do here was to go discotheque dancing at the Wharf, a picturesque shipyard barn with an incongruous crystal chandelier.

This year the chic crowd presses across the gangplank onto a noisy, smoky, congested, fishnet-draped, lantern-lit railroad barge once used to shuttle vegetables across New York harbor.

There they writhe on a tiny patch of mahogany to the frenzied beat of the Rascals, billed as the hottest new "rock" group in the East.

It is also chic to carom through the streets in convertibles and climb out over the door; to fly kites at the country club pool; to crash houseparties after 2 a.m.; to sleep 40 winks on the floor of somebody's cottage and start all over again.

The Hamptons on Long Island, site of summer homes for moneyed people, have always been chic and colorful with miles of dunes, beaches, fishing boats, windmills, and high-hedged estates hiding old mansions and sprawling, imported lawns. It was always chic somnolent until it became very chic to have fun day and night. Especially night. Now The Hamptons are chic and swinging.

Oldtimers dispair the steady encroachment of motels and cooperative hotels; beer cans in roadside gutters; parked cars filled with sleeping, party-exhausted teen-agers too broke to invest in a night's lodging.

As raspy - voiced, piano-tinkling jet set favorite, Hugh Shannon, explains it, "All of a sudden Prince Migual was on the doorstep with about 100 pieces of luggage and a lovely companion and with no place to go but my house. We managed, though."

So did Carol Channing and husband, Rona Jaffe and friends, etc. etc. The Shannon seaside cottage is always bulging and bouncing with international fun-loving celebrities.

Friday's night life get a slow start after the Long Island Railroad Club have disgorged the last commuter and the sports cars of affluent New Yorkers have tediously crawled through two and a half hours of traffic. On Saturday and Sunday it starts at noon and lasts till dawn.

Along with The Barge the chic stops to make include the Mid-Hamptons Country Club where Shannon, the daytime party host, becomes Shannon the nighttime saloon singer with the same sophisticates of the day encircling him worshipfully at the piano like kiddies in kindergarten.

It is very chic for ladies to wear bellbottom trousers and lace pajamas to the discotheques; hair long and straight; false eye lashes; cowboy hats; sandals by night and bare feet by day; bikinis at poolside — but never in the water.

It is very chic for men to wear open-necked shirts and ascot ties, blazer or madras jackets and loud slacks bought at a men's store that has blue polka dotted awnings.

It is very chic at The Hamptons.

WANTED: WATER—Restaurants in New York City are forbidden to serve drinking water unless specifically requested. This drastic ruling symbolizes severity of the drought from the Gulf of Mexico northeast into New Brunswick, Canada. So critical is the situation indicated on Newsmap above, the Interior Department says that without abnormally heavy summer rainfall, water-supplying streams and wells may drop to all-time lows by October. Contrarily, water-levels of streams is excessive from Montana to the Great Lakes, with many floods in localities as far south as Texas.

Johnson Loves to Surprise Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whether he's in a bathrobe or a rose garden, President Johnson loves to surprise when he names a man for a big job.

And secrecy about the announcement before Johnson makes it! That's become a by-word at the White House.

It goes so far that even those closest to Johnson, like Bill D. Moyers, his very able press secretary, sometimes appear left in the dark about who's getting the prize.

While this technique saves an appointee the embarrassment of public speculation about his merits for a job before he gets it, it also assures Johnson the maximum publicity.

But so far the men Johnson has picked for the highest government posts have met with wide approval. And so have most of those he's named to jobs a notch or several notches lower.

Sometimes Johnson may delay for months in making up his mind, which might indicate he has searched everywhere for suggestions on the best possible man and then slowly winnowed the possibilities.

But there are times when he apparently decides in a hurry, which he seems to have done in the case of Abe Fortas, whom he appointed to the Supreme Court, although since Fortas was his friend and helper for 30 years there was plenty of time to figure the right place for him.

When Robert F. Kennedy resigned as attorney general last September to run for the Senate, his No. 2 man, Nicholas Katzenbach, took charge of the Justice Department.

Katzenbach seemed a likely choice for Kennedy's job. He was an able lawyer, a legal scholar, a former professor of law at the University of Chicago, and he had made a name as a fighter for civil rights.

But Johnson delayed for months. Then on Jan. 28 he invited Katzenbach and his wife to dinner at the White House.

Katzenbach said later the President was ill in bed with a cold but got up, put on a bathrobe, joined his guests and Mrs. Johnson at dinner, and there broke the news to Katzenbach that he would be the new attorney general.

Perhaps Johnson searched for advice before picking a successor to Adlai E. Stevenson, who died July 14, as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. But on July 20 he named Supreme Court Jsstice Arthur J. Goldberg.

In doing so, Johnson combined drama and surprise for the greatest possible publicity mileage. There had been a multitude of guesses about the new ambassador, but nobody seemed to have thought of Goldberg.

At about 10:30 a.m. on the 20th, reporters were led into the White House rose garden to watch Johnson greet some U.S. ambassadors back from Africa for consultation.

When this was over Johnson turned back to his office, saying over his shoulder to the newsmen: "I'll be back in a moment." And he was.

But with him he had Goldberg, Mrs. Goldberg, and their son, Robert. Then Johnson announced Goldberg had "accepted the call of duty," given up his lifetime seat on the Supreme Court and would be the new ambassador.

The next question: Who'd get Goldberg's place on the court? Some of the guesses had the job going to a woman, to a Negro, to Fortas, and to others. Fortas was the one most often mentioned.

The day after Goldberg's appointment, Moyers was asked about Goldberg's successor. He said: "I have seen all the names quoted in the press and I don't think any of those are names that the President is giving consideration to."

Then Johnson chose his nationally televised news conference on July 28 to say he had picked Fortas.

It has been reported that Johnson asked Fortas, a famous lawyer with long experience in government, to take Goldberg's job within an hour or so after asking Goldberg to go to the United Nations.

MAN OF SORROWS

CHRIST claims our help in many a strange disguise,
Now fever ridden on a bed He lies;
Homeless He wanders now
beneath the stars;
Now counts the number of His prison bars,
No need have we to climb the heavenly stairs
To look upon His wounded
feet and hands;
In every man that suffers He,
the Man of Sorrows, stands.

Writhing to Rascals
Chic at the Hamptons

THE HAMPTONS, N.Y. (AP) — Last year the really chic thing to do here was to go discotheque dancing at the Wharf, a picturesque shipyard barn with an incongruous crystal chandelier.

This year the chic crowd presses across the gangplank onto a noisy, smoky, congested, fishnet-draped, lantern-lit railroad barge once used to shuttle vegetables across New York harbor.

There they writhe on a tiny patch of mahogany to the frenzied beat of the Rascals, billed as the hottest new "rock" group in the East.

It is also chic to carom through the streets in convertibles and climb out over the door; to fly kites at the country club pool; to crash houseparties after 2 a.m.; to sleep 40 winks on the floor of somebody's cottage and start all over again.

The Hamptons on Long Island, site of summer homes for moneyed people, have always been chic and colorful with miles of dunes, beaches, fishing boats, windmills, and high-hedged estates hiding old mansions and sprawling, imported lawns. It was always chic somnolent until it became very chic to have fun day and night. Especially night. Now The Hamptons are chic and swinging.

Oldtimers dispair the steady encroachment of motels and cooperative hotels; beer cans in roadside gutters; parked cars filled with sleeping, party-exhausted teen-agers too broke to invest in a night's lodging.

As raspy - voiced, piano-tinkling jet set favorite, Hugh Shannon, explains it, "All of a sudden Prince Migual was on the doorstep with about 100 pieces of luggage and a lovely companion and with no place to go but my house. We managed, though."

So did Carol Channing and husband, Rona Jaffe and friends, etc. etc. The Shannon seaside cottage is always bulging and bouncing with international fun-loving celebrities.

Friday's night life get a slow start after the Long Island Railroad Club have disgorged the last commuter and the sports cars of affluent New Yorkers have tediously crawled through two and a half hours of traffic. On Saturday and Sunday it starts at noon and lasts till dawn.

Along with The Barge the chic stops to make include the Mid-Hamptons Country Club where Shannon, the daytime party host, becomes Shannon the nighttime saloon singer with the same sophisticates of the day encircling him worshipfully at the piano like kiddies in kindergarten.

It is very chic for ladies to wear bellbottom trousers and lace pajamas to the discotheques; hair long and straight; false eye lashes; cowboy hats; sandals by night and bare feet by day; bikinis at poolside — but never in the water.

It is very chic for men to wear open-necked shirts and ascot ties, blazer or madras jackets and loud slacks bought at a men's store that has blue polka dotted awnings.

It is very chic at The Hamptons.

Indonesia Expected To Step up Campaign

SINGAPORE (AP) — Indonesia is expected to step up its campaign to crush Malaysia now that Singapore has left the young federation.

President Sukarno is likely to View Singapore's separation Monday as a green light to step up military operations and an indication that Malaysia is on the rocks.

The "other war" in Southeast Asia probably will increase in gravity, with consequent increased demands on the British and Commonwealth forces who are Malaysia's chief protection.

"Malaysia can expect an onslaughter from Indonesia in the coming week," a military source said after the split in the federation was announced.

The source said Indonesia now is likely to shift its sights away from this big Southeast Asian city.

"The Indonesians might be tempted to have a go at British bases here," the source said. "But if they think they can get Singapore on their side — and Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew has said he wants to cooperate with Indonesia — they might call a temporary halt to their attacks on Singapore."

Other military sources consider Singapore's separation from Malaysia a psychological victory for Indonesia.

"Sukarno must be having a great laugh," one source said. "But you can expect him to take the utmost advantage of the separation militarily."

Most military authorities in Singapore - Britain's biggest base east of Suez — were pessimistic about the effect Singapore's separation from Malaysia will have on the morale of those resisting Indonesian aggression.

"If they can't stick together internally, how are they going to fight an external enemy?" one source said.

"We can expect the Indonesians to take the utmost advantage of the split. They will now give confrontation everything they have got, because they believe they have smelt the first sniff of victory.

"They have seen the first crack in Malaysia."

Military authorities believe Aug. 17, Indonesia's independence day, probably will spark the biggest, most determined attack yet on Malaysia. Aug. 31, Malaysia's independence day, is another likely date for attack.

On the two independence days last year Sukarno sent paratroopers and other forces into the Malaysian mainland. Both these incursions were crushed by security forces — Malaysians, British, Australians and New Zealanders.

Since then, Sukarno has sent numerous guerrilla teams into mainland Malaya. In recent months he has been concentrating on this island state of 1.8 million people.

Bombings became commonplace. Two weeks ago an attempt was made to blow up the entrance to the U.S. consulate. Sukarno threatened to turn Singapore into a "sea of flames" if Britain stepped up aggression against Indonesia, as he put it. Indonesian Defense Minister Abdul Haris Nasution said Singapore must be destroyed before Malaysia could be crushed.

Sukarno will probably now shift his sights from Singapore to the Malayan mainland and Malaysia's Borneo states of Sarawak and Sabah.

The Indonesians are expected to land regular troops and infiltrators in southern Malaya by boat. They may try to drop paratroops into certain areas on the peninsula.

Some military observers believe they might use guided missiles against strategic military bases. A recent report said the Soviet Union has supplied Indonesia 12 gunboats armed with surface-to-surface missiles capable of carrying atomic warheads.

In Borneo, the Indonesians are expected to send more troops across the jungle border and to speed up their attempts to stir up internal trouble.

They have allies in Sarawak, where some 25,000 Chinese are believed to be pro-Peking, anti-Malaysia and prepared for armed revolt.

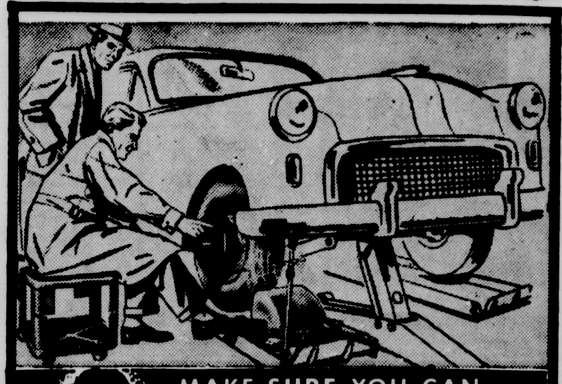

Indonesia recently stepped up its training of Chinese from Sarawak on its side of the border in guerrilla warfare. Recently Indonesian regulars led a group of Chinese Communists in an attack on a police post. Nine people were killed, including the brother of Sarawak's chief minister.

PRAYER FOR MY SMALL SON

I DO NOT ask that he shall ever be
distinguished mien,
But, Lord, that in his face
there may be seen
A holy faith, a shining love for Thee!
And, Lord, I do not ask that he be given
An athlete's build or an unusual height,
But when he kneels to pray,
that in those bright,
Transcendent moments he may reach to Heaven!

IT'S UP TO YOU

By Howard E. Kershner, L.H.D.

Vietnam Negotiations

THE whole world, from the United Nations to Podunk, is in a dither about negotiations to end the war in Vietnam. Apparently it is believed that if the Communists and those who believe in free government sit down around a table together, they can iron out their differences and reach an agreement.

Dr. Kershner

In the first place, this was done at Geneva in 1954. If that agreement had been kept, the present Vietnamese war would never have been started. It was destroyed by Communist aggression just as any new agreement would be destroyed if and when it was in the interest of Communism to do so.

In the second place, it cannot be too often repeated that the Communists are not seeking the solution of the Vietnamese problem. Their aim is conquest, and it will remain that with or without an agreement. They will resort to an agreement if by doing so they believe they can get the West to relax and lower its guard, making it easier for them to gain new territory by renewed aggression at the strategic time.

All talk of settling the problem in Vietnam by negotiations is idle. It cannot be done unless those who wage it are so eager for peace that they are willing to surrender. There might be some sort of face-saving formula, but it would be meaningless.

The Communists will negotiate only if they think that is the best way to gain more territory. The choice before us is simple. We must defeat Communism or surrender to it. Have not the Communists told us over and over that free government and Communism cannot live in the world side by side, but that if we do not conquer them, they will conquer us? The more we postpone facing up to that essential fact, the more likely we are to lose in the struggle for survival.

TV Shows Have Many Taboos

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A worried-looking aide hurried into the office of his executive producer Tuesday, clutching a cigarette case.

The case, a prop to be used in one of several spy series currently in production, was really a concealed gun.

"I just don't know about this piece of business," said the aide. "He's supposed to flip the case open, but instead of getting a cigarette, he shoots the heavy."

"So?" said the producer calmly.

"So, won't we get a scream from the cigarette sponsor? They yell every time we don't handle a cigarette reverently."

The producer mused. Consequently, when the episode reaches television screens, the cigarette case probably will be a wallet or a cigarette lighter.

Automobile sponsors deplore stories involving traffic accidents. Aspirin bottlers want headaches avoided and, presumably, a manufacturer of wash-day products would avoid association with a series laid in a Chinese laundry.

On the other hand, pet food companies like to have animals, particularly those who eat the product, in the shows they underwrite. The breakfast food people think kids in the cast of their shows are just fine.

The female star of one series recently bought an expensive, sporty foreign car. It stands idle and hidden under sheets in her garage while she drives a low-priced American stock model. The auto manufacturer became a sponsor of her series and part of the deal was her use of the sponsor's product.

There is one story about a show that lost its underwriter when it was discovered that the star smoked another brand concealed in the sponsor's package.

Starting Sept. 13, NBC plans to shift major segments of the "Today Show" to color.

Ed Sullivan, whose shows normally come from New York, will make five in Hollywood next month since CBS has color facilities in the film city.

And Perry Como, whose specials originated in black and white from cities all over the nation last year, returns to the New York NBC color studios next season.

Business Zoom Surprise

NEW YORK (AP) — The economy is displaying some variations from its usual August pattern this year. It's striding ahead in some lines that traditionally take a siesta. And even in some of those fields where the hot weather is bringing a slowdown, there are marked differences this summer.

The differences are what the soothsayers are eyeing as they seek to guess what lies ahead for this fall and also for the bigger question mark of early 1966.

Employment this summer has increased beyond seasonal expectations. A record 75 million Americans have work. That hardly adds up to the summer slowdown that a few months ago was taken for granted in some quarters. The employment jump could forecast an even better autumn than once seemed likely.

Businessmen continue to pile up inventories. They have already added $4.4 billion to their stocks so far this year, compared with a $4-billion increase for all of 1964. Some of this buildup is because business looks so good and because turnover is so fast that big stocks are needed. But some of the inventory pileup could spell trouble later. And that is being closely watched and assessed.

Steel output has risen to its highest level in five weeks. More striking is the contrast with August a year ago. Production is running 15 per cent higher now. Of course, there's a reason that is far from an unmixed good. In the steel industry this August is unusual because steel users are taking no chances of being caught short if there's a strike after Sept. 1. And if there isn't, the steel mills may have a letdown this fall.

Auto production is slowing down now. The changeover in models is halting production lines later this year than usual. So the figures this August won't mean much when compared with those of last.

August is proving a big month in other industries. New orders are beginning to pour in for some of the makers of military hard goods. And the August buildup in the war in Viet Nam apparently spells increased activity in many lines, both durable and nondurable, in the months ahead.

Businessmen also are boosting their plans for future spending for new plants and equipment. The Viet Nam War expansion seems to have changed few plans, and may be inciting new ones.

August may see the Congress voting larger appropriations for the military. This could help assure economic growth in the months ahead, although it also might mean the dimming of hopes for another federal tax cut next year.

We live in a world that has narrowed into a neighborhood before it has broadened into a brotherhood.

President Lyndon B. Johnson

Evangelist Dedicates Cross

MOUNT LYN LOWRY, N. C. AP — Evangelist Billy Graham has dedicated a 80-foot steel cross "to the glory of God" atop this 6,280-foot peak near Waynesville.

The cross is lighted and is visible 30 miles in all directions. The cross was erected last year by Gen. and Mrs. Sumter L. Lowry in memory of their daughter, Lyn.

MOSCOW AP — A highly mechanized American shoe repair shop has been opened in Moscow. Before the recent opening ceremony was finished, dozens of minor Soviet officials had their shoes repaired.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass. AP — Police say a skeleton found in Veterans Memorial Fountain pool recently probably was put there by pranksters. The skeleton was wired together and was similar to those used in medical schools.

LISBON, Portugal AP — Adm. Americo Thomaz, 70, has been sworn in for a second seven-year term as president of Portugal.

WASHINGTON AP — The Civil Aeronautics Board has decided to hold all its hearings here to save money. The board no longer will order proceedings outside of Washington, effective Sept. 1, says Chairman Charles S. Murphy.

MOSCOW AP — A Soviet textile mill claims it has perfected a new technique of coating cloth with aluminum spray which would make it good either for hot or cold weather.

USS ESSEX (CVS-9) (FHTNC) Aug. 6 — Airman Apprentice Charles J. Gaskins, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gaskins of Route 1, Dexter, Mo., is serving aboard the anti-submarine warfare aircraft carrier USS Essex, homeported at U. S. Naval Air Station Quonset Point, R. I.

Essex recently completed a six-week summer Midshipman Training Cruise. About 145 Midshipmen from the U. S. Naval Academy and colleges throughout the country were embarked. Essex and the Task Group visited Boston, New York and Norfolk prior to her return to Quonset.

The Navy's oldest operating aircraft carrier, Essex was distinguished as the "Fightin'est Ship in the Fleet" because of her outstanding service in World War II and the Korean War. She has been on the scene of nearly every post-war crisis including: Lebanon, Formosa and the Cuban Quarantine; and has earned 12 engagements and the Presidential Unit Citation.

Essex serves as flagship, mobile air base and logistics support ship for the Atlantic Fleet hunter-killer group, Task Group 83.3, organized to detect, classify, localize, destroy enemy submarines in event of war.

Vietnam Negotiations

THE whole world, from the United Nations to Podunk, is in a dither about negotiations to end the war in Vietnam. Apparently it is believed that if the Communists and those who believe in free government sit down around a table together, they can iron out their differences and reach an agreement.

Dr. Kershner

In the first place, this was done at Geneva in 1954. If that agreement had been kept, the present Vietnamese war would never have been started. It was destroyed by Communist aggression just as any new agreement would be destroyed if and when it was in the interest of Communism to do so.

In the second place, it cannot be too often repeated that the Communists are not seeking the solution of the Vietnamese problem. Their aim is conquest, and it will remain that with or without an agreement. They will resort to an agreement if by doing so they believe they can get the West to relax and lower its guard, making it easier for them to gain new territory by renewed aggression at the strategic time.

All talk of settling the problem in Vietnam by negotiations is idle. It cannot be done unless those who wage it are so eager for peace that they are willing to surrender. There might be some sort of face-saving formula, but it would be meaningless.

The Communists will negotiate only if they think that is the best way to gain more territory. The choice before us is simple. We must defeat Communism or surrender to it. Have not the Communists told us over and over that free government and Communism cannot live in the world side by side, but that if we do not conquer them, they will conquer us? The more we postpone facing up to that essential fact, the more likely we are to lose in the struggle for survival.

TV Shows Have Many Taboos

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A worried-looking aide hurried into the office of his executive producer Tuesday, clutching a cigarette case.

The case, a prop to be used in one of several spy series currently in production, was really a concealed gun.

"I just don't know about this piece of business," said the aide. "He's supposed to flip the case open, but instead of getting a cigarette, he shoots the heavy."

"So?" said the producer calmly.

"So, won't we get a scream from the cigarette sponsor? They yell every time we don't handle a cigarette reverently."

The producer mused. Consequently, when the episode reaches television screens, the cigarette case probably will be a wallet or a cigarette lighter.

Automobile sponsors deplore stories involving traffic accidents. Aspirin bottlers want headaches avoided and, presumably, a manufacturer of wash-day products would avoid association with a series laid in a Chinese laundry.

On the other hand, pet food companies like to have animals, particularly those who eat the product, in the shows they underwrite. The breakfast food people think kids in the cast of their shows are just fine.

The female star of one series recently bought an expensive, sporty foreign car. It stands idle and hidden under sheets in her garage while she drives a low-priced American stock model. The auto manufacturer became a sponsor of her series and part of the deal was her use of the sponsor's product.

There is one story about a show that lost its underwriter when it was discovered that the star smoked another brand concealed in the sponsor's package.

Starting Sept. 13, NBC plans to shift major segments of the "Today Show" to color.

Ed Sullivan, whose shows normally come from New York, will make five in Hollywood next month since CBS has color facilities in the film city.

And Perry Como, whose specials originated in black and white from cities all over the nation last year, returns to the New York NBC color studios next season.

Business Zoom Surprise

NEW YORK (AP) — The economy is displaying some variations from its usual August pattern this year. It's striding ahead in some lines that traditionally take a siesta. And even in some of those fields where the hot weather is bringing a slowdown, there are marked differences this summer.

The differences are what the soothsayers are eyeing as they seek to guess what lies ahead for this fall and also for the bigger question mark of early 1966.

Employment this summer has increased beyond seasonal expectations. A record 75 million Americans have work. That hardly adds up to the summer slowdown that a few months ago was taken for granted in some quarters. The employment jump could forecast an even better autumn than once seemed likely.

Businessmen continue to pile up inventories. They have already added $4.4 billion to their stocks so far this year, compared with a $4-billion increase for all of 1964. Some of this buildup is because business looks so good and because turnover is so fast that big stocks are needed. But some of the inventory pileup could spell trouble later. And that is being closely watched and assessed.

Steel output has risen to its highest level in five weeks. More striking is the contrast with August a year ago. Production is running 15 per cent higher now. Of course, there's a reason that is far from an unmixed good. In the steel industry this August is unusual because steel users are taking no chances of being caught short if there's a strike after Sept. 1. And if there isn't, the steel mills may have a letdown this fall.

Auto production is slowing down now. The changeover in models is halting production lines later this year than usual. So the figures this August won't mean much when compared with those of last.

August is proving a big month in other industries. New orders are beginning to pour in for some of the makers of military hard goods. And the August buildup in the war in Viet Nam apparently spells increased activity in many lines, both durable and nondurable, in the months ahead.

Businessmen also are boosting their plans for future spending for new plants and equipment. The Viet Nam War expansion seems to have changed few plans, and may be inciting new ones.

August may see the Congress voting larger appropriations for the military. This could help assure economic growth in the months ahead, although it also might mean the dimming of hopes for another federal tax cut next year.

We live in a world that has narrowed into a neighborhood before it has broadened into a brotherhood.

President Lyndon B. Johnson

Here and There

Evangelist Dedicates Cross

MOUNT LYN LOWRY, N. C. AP — Evangelist Billy Graham has dedicated a 80-foot steel cross "to the glory of God" atop this 6,280-foot peak near Waynesville.

The cross is lighted and is visible 30 miles in all directions. The cross was erected last year by Gen. and Mrs. Sumter L. Lowry in memory of their daughter, Lyn.

MOSCOW AP — A highly mechanized American shoe repair shop has been opened in Moscow. Before the recent opening ceremony was finished, dozens of minor Soviet officials had their shoes repaired.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass. AP — Police say a skeleton found in Veterans Memorial Fountain pool recently probably was put there by pranksters. The skeleton was wired together and was similar to those used in medical schools.

LISBON, Portugal AP — Adm. Americo Thomaz, 70, has been sworn in for a second seven-year term as president of Portugal.

WASHINGTON AP — The Civil Aeronautics Board has decided to hold all its hearings here to save money. The board no longer will order proceedings outside of Washington, effective Sept. 1, says Chairman Charles S. Murphy.

MOSCOW AP — A Soviet textile mill claims it has perfected a new technique of coating cloth with aluminum spray which would make it good either for hot or cold weather.

Be charitable and indulgent to every one but thyself.

Armed Forces

USS ESSEX (CVS-9) (FHTNC) Aug. 6 — Airman Apprentice Charles J. Gaskins, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gaskins of Route 1, Dexter, Mo., is serving aboard the anti-submarine warfare aircraft carrier USS Essex, homeported at U. S. Naval Air Station Quonset Point, R. I.

Essex recently completed a six-week summer Midshipman Training Cruise. About 145 Midshipmen from the U. S. Naval Academy and colleges throughout the country were embarked. Essex and the Task Group visited Boston, New York and Norfolk prior to her return to Quonset.

The Navy's oldest operating aircraft carrier, Essex was distinguished as the "Fightin'est Ship in the Fleet" because of her outstanding service in World War II and the Korean War. She has been on the scene of nearly every post-war crisis including: Lebanon, Formosa and the Cuban Quarantine; and has earned 12 engagements and the Presidential Unit Citation.

Essex serves as flagship, mobile air base and logistics support ship for the Atlantic Fleet hunter-killer group, Task Group 83.3, organized to detect, classify, localize, destroy enemy submarines in event of war.

Curvy German Actress Eats Rich Desserts

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Elke Sommer, the curvy German actress, is a rarity: She eats desserts.

"I think a woman to be feminine should be round," she says.

"In Europe men prefer a woman they can put their arms around and feel something besides bones.

"Even American designers — and the French, too — make clothes for girls who should be sent to camps for undernourished children. I have yet to meet a man who wants a girl friend built like a boy."

Elke believes that feminity is not all body and face.

"You see a beautiful woman enter the room and you don't look. You see a less beautiful woman—and you look.

"And nine times out of ten, that less beautiful woman you see will be well-rounded."

Elke sometimes even has a second helping of dessert.

She is currently in "The Oscar," which she calls the best part she has had so far. She plays a dress designer.

"I have never been dressed so beautifully in a movie," says Elke.

Because of her blonde beauty and knockout figure, she has spent much of her movie career in scanty garb.

When Elke first came to the United States to make "The Prize," and interviewer wrote:

"She sleeps in the nude, her left thumb in her mouth, her right arm cuddling a stuffed lamb. Asleep, she resembles a child. But awake and in fluid motion before the camaeras, she makes Bardot look like an awkward schoolgirl. There are critics who deride her talent but her movies have earned her a half-dozen fur coats and three homes. She says she has no time for love but the European press claims that two men have committed suicide over her. On screen she seems kitten soft; off screen she possesses an iron will, a soaring ambition and the mind of an electric computer."

What did she do about the guy who wrote that.

"I married him," says Mrs. Joe Hyams.

VOTE FOR AMENDMENT

FOR A BETTER MISSOURI!

Amendment No. 1 provides that the voters of Missouri may re-elect their governors to a second term. It gives a governor the chance to be eligible for re-election only once. Amendment No. 1 does nothing more than give the voters an opportunity to look a governor over at the end of his first term, and decide if he should have the opportunity to complete his program. Certainly if a governor has not done a good job during his first term, the voters would not re-elect him to the second term. Let a governor stand on his record. If it's a good one, the people should decide if they want him to continue for another term. The decision should be yours!

FOR A BETTER MISSOURI!

Amendment No. 1 provides that the voters of Missouri may re-elect their governors to a second term. It gives a governor the chance to be eligible for re-election only once. Amendment No. 1 does nothing more than give the voters an opportunity to look a governor over at the end of his first term, and decide if he should have the opportunity to complete his program. Certainly if a governor has not done a good job during his first term, the voters would not re-elect him to the second term. Let a governor stand on his record. If it's a good one, the people should decide if they want him to continue for another term. The decision should be yours!

Elizabeth Taylor Sex Symbol

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

Last of 5 articles on the sex revolution in movies.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The career of Elizabeth Taylor provides a notable example of how attitudes toward sex in films have been revolutionized.

Twenty years ago at MGM she was playing a fresh-faced ingenue whose greatest concern was whether she would get a date for the prom.

Today in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" she portrays a fortyish housewife who taunts her professor husband (Richard Burton) by bedding down with his university associates.

The most publicized star of the 1960s, Elizabeth Taylor, 33, represents the American films' newfound freedom in dealing with sex. In her most recent films -- excluding "Cleopatra," which is the way she would like it — she has portrayed the mother of a love-child ("The Sandpiper"), an adulteress ("The V.I.P.'s") and a call girl ("Butterfield 8"). The latter performance drew her Hollywood's ultimate honor, the Academy Award.

Hollywood's sex revolution has been hailed by some critics as an overdue admission of reality. It has also been denounced by many as a danger to the American family and a long step down the road to decadence.

The man caught in the crossfire is Geoffrey Shurlock, 71, Liverpool - born administrator of the industry's production code. He denies charges that movies are corrupting American morals.

"Eighty per cent of the changes in the moral aspects of films are due to changes in the country's morals," he argued. "The movies are not about to set patterns for behavior. We merely reflect what is going on in the country. And attitudes toward such matters as sex have greatly changed since the war.

"The major change in films during recent years has been the treatment of sex, and I think it is a healthy one. Film makers are no longer treating sex as something terrifying and sinful, but as a subject for fun and satire.

"The code used to say that seduction could not be a subject for comedy. But then the Doris Day-Rock Hudson comedies proved that seduction — though she never was seduced — could be funny and inoffensive.

"Then 'Tom Jones' came along to set the pattern. When I read the script, I didn't see how we could ever pass it. But the film was done with such style and taste that we couldn't reject it."

Shurlock illustrated how the code follows public acceptance in matters of costuming:

"For years we banned bikinis from the screen. But they became so prevalent on the beaches that we allowed them. Now we're trying to hold the line against short bikinis.

"When I speak before women audiences, they often ask me how far movies will go in undressing. I tell them, 'just as far as you women strip.' If the topless bathing suit becomes accepted at the beaches, we'll show them on the screen.

"As of now, we are not permitting objectionable exposure on the screen. There may be nudity, but that doesn't necessarily mean nakedness. For instance, in 'The Collector' the girl (Samantha Egger) strips to seduce her captor and try to win freedom. But the scene is done in good taste."

It started with "The Kiss." Now, "What's New Pussycat?" where will it all end?

Shurlock replies: "The screen reflects the life of the people. Whatever is morally acceptable will be seen in films. Some people say we should teach. I don't think so. Movies are supposed to be entertaining, and I hope they go on being just that."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Says Edith Head, Academy-winning designer: "Elizabeth Taylor typifies the complete, absolute, ultimate look of sex appeal, which is the style of the 1960s. Not only has the bosom been emphasized; it has been exposed. This is the furthest modern fashion has gone in exposure. What next? We'll either see space suits, with the entire body concealed, or revert to primitive dress with only a leaf here and there. Having seen a great many women in the altogether, I would prefer the space suit."

Approximately 85 per cent of the world's raisins are grown in California's San Joaquin Valley.

Crack Panama Limited Is Delight

By JOSEPH A. JOST
Globe-Democrat Travel Editor

I always feel an excitement run through me when I board a train. And it was no different when I started to climb the steps of a Pullman car of the sparkling clean string at the station in New Orleans recently, that make up the crack Illinois Central Panama Limited.

I suppose I can be classified a railroad buff. This goes back to my early days as a boy. We kids in the neighborhood spent most of our leisure time playing ball, swimming in the Mississippi River on the North Side and riding freight trains. Those were the days when money was really a scarce item, and youngsters had to be resourceful to find free amusements.

ANSWER IS YES

People often ask me if any good passenger trains are still serving the United States. Actually, there are a number of excellent lines operating in the country, including the Panama Limited that runs between Chicago, via a section out of St. Louis, down to enchanting New Orleans. And incidentally, the Illinois Central is still running one of the finest trains in the nation, from Chicago and St. Louis to Miami, Fla.

The one outstanding feature that was in evidence from the moment I approached the train in New Orleans in mid-afternoon and until I arrived in St. Louis the next morning, was the high standard of attention and service. The entire staff strives to make the passenger welcome, comfortable and "happy to be aboard."

The highlight of the trip was the dinner hour. This is one of my favorite moments, when I can enjoy my refreshments and food as the ever-changing scenery rushes past my view, while relaxed by the gentle tugging of the speeding train.

Dining on the Panama is a delight. The menu suggests real adventure in eating, which carries such dishes as broiled shad roe, prime rib of beef, roast young turkey, smoked southern ham, choice loin pork chops and grilled lobster tails.

KING'S DINNER

Charcoal broiled steak is available, also. But with a few appetizers, you might be enabled to rise up to the "King's Dinner," the Central's special. Other lines are trying to emulate, by duplicating this prized feature.

After a cocktail, you begin with either a shrimp or crab-finger cocktail drenched in special Illinois Central sauce. A charcoal broiled fish course, usually filet of gulf red fish, accompanied with a large bottle of imported Bertoli vinrosa wine comes next. This is followed by the steak, smothered in buttered mushrooms and accompanied by potatoes, vegetables, bread and butter.

And if you expect to earn the lapel pin and wallet card, proclaiming you as one of the exclusive members of the Illinois Central's Gourmet Club for enjoying the King's Dinner, you still must partake of desert, coffee and an after dinner liqueur. A glance at the price might be startling, but when considering the variety and quality of the food, the $9.85 charge on board a train, is something of a bargain.

FAST, TOO

The orange, brown and gold streamliner is popular with businessmen as well as with tourists. In this country today, we seldom hear of the performance of our trains, so I would like this chance, to mention, the Panama gets up to 100 miles per hour at times.

State's First Lady Must Succeed in Many Roles

JEFFERSON CITY -- Wife, mother, homemaker - these roles are an integral part of a women's life. However, they sometimes must "take a back seat" to responsibilities to her state when she becomes Missouri's First Lady. Regardless of her background, her family or her activities prior to entering the Governor's Mansion, the duties of the governor's wife rest heavily upon her.

"Probably the largest adjustment we had to make was making this 27-room house into a home for our children," Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes says. "Actually, the problems encountered in the Mansion are, for the most part, those encountered by every housewife--multiplied by 150."

"You have to work with the problems which confront you and realize they can't be solved in one day," a former First Lady, Mrs. John M. Dalton, adds. "The Mansion," she explains, "resembles a small city, with a self-contained laundry and pressing establishment. There are 21 persons you see everyday. Five are paid help (two housekeepers, a cook, a chauffeur and the First Lady's secretary) and the rest are guarded helpers from the prison who do the house chores and keep the grounds. It's rewarding for them to get out and to enjoy the beauty of the Mansion. They're also doing a worthwhile job and saving some money for their release.

"The Mansion, which has nine baths and eight fireplaces, is cleaned thoroughly from top to bottom every day by these men-even down to washing the basement floor. It must be done this way to preserve the beauty of a house which is this old. Also, a constant influx of visitors makes this necessary."

Although Mrs. Hearnes and Mrs. Dalton enjoy housework, the First Lady is spared the menial tasks of housekeeping.

"I never had to polish the silver or mop the floors," Mrs. Dalton says. But she isn't without the duties of an ordinary housewife.

She must see that her husband goes to his physician regularly for a checkup and that the children get to the dentist every six months. She must plan menus for her family and for the large dinners for which she is frequently hostess. "It's hard to regulate your diet when you're on a banquet circuit," says Mrs. Hearnes. "It would be so easy to gain weight, but I try to compensate for this when I plan our family dinners." Mrs. Hearnes keeps herself trim by rolling on the floor to reduce her hips when necessary. "Of course, I don't have much time for this anymore."

Both Mrs. Hearnes and Mrs. Dalton noticed the effect that their move had on friends. Mrs. Hearnes still holds Morning Music Club rehearsals and meetings as scheduled in the Governor's Mansion. However, she is aware, as was her predecessor, that the formal atmosphere of the Mansion reduces the number of "back fence" talks and friendly phone calls. No one knows quite how to approach the stately Mansion -- whether to stand in awe or walk right in. "Of course my friends still visit and my clubs meet here when it's my turn to have them, but the atmosphere is different from 606 Boonville Rd."

Mrs. Hearnes is trying to share the beauty of the house with other citizens of Missouri by letting organized groups, such as the Sophomore Pilgrimage held recently in Jefferson City, tour the mansion. "We stumbled upon the idea of having seven of my friends who have studied the Mansion and its history to show it. This way we can cover more in a 30-minute tour, and each woman knows one particular part of the Mansion and is adept at explaining and displaying the significant things in it. We wish we could share it with everyone but, of course, this would be impossible since it is our home. We try to give as much time as possible to our children and an open house would make this impossible."

One of the "headaches" which confronts the governor's wife is the Mansion's budget. She must plan it and supervise all problems which arise. "I felt more responsible for the state's money than for my own," Mrs. Dalton says. "After all, I was responsible to 4 million people!" The state is, of course, safeguarded against any major misjudgments because for any item of more than $50, three bids must be turned in to the state before appropriations are made.

"Nevertheless, this juggling of money can become hectic, especially when more than 13,000 persons dine with you in four years," Mrs. Dalton continues. "We tried to keep expenses down to a minimum and to 'compensate' for personal guests by personally contributing one-fourth of the total grocery bill. Regardless, it's quite a responsibility."

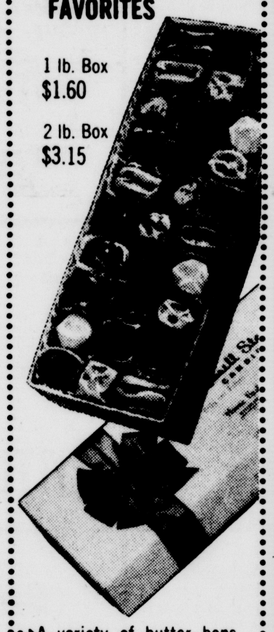

However, the First Lady is used to these, for she is responsible for everything in the Mansion. Among her more pleasurable duties are her obligations as hostess of the Mansion.

In addition to the teas, receptions and banquets over which she must preside, she has stacks of mail which she must answer each day and she is called upon to speak before various groups. Topics for the speeches are usually about life in the Mansion or women in politics. "It's much easier when you're given a topic," both women agreed.

However, there really isn't much time for speeches. No two days are alike while living in the Mansion, but all are hectic. A typical day's schedule, includes a 9 a.m. appointment, luncheon for guests at the Mansion, an afternoon tour of the Mansion and a formal dinner for 30 that evening. Mrs. Hearnes' interest in the Morning Music Club is sandwiched among her other activities--as is her piano which has found its place downstairs among antiques and momentos of previous administrations.

Mrs. Hearnes retains many of her clubs and activities although the demands on her time have increased. Music is her favorite pastime and she maintains her interest through her club work and church work, as director of the primary choir and soprano in the adult choir of the First Baptist Church, Jefferson City. She also teaches a Sunday School class of young married women and does volunteer work with the Missouri Mental Health Assn. Recently she visited Columbia to inspect its "Head Start" project.

The First Lady is a busy person. Demands on her time and patience are great. However, as the wife of the governor and as official hostess for Missouri, her personal life gives way to her political standing.

Dean Martin Sets Fast Pace, Fools Experts

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "And they call me lazy!" Dean Martin said with scorn.

The allegedly lazy singer-actor was breezing through his third film of this year and preparing to continue his string of television shows, which will total 30 in the coming season.

"Not bad for a lazy guy," he muttered.

He happened on a thought that seemed to give him pleasure. "You know," he said, "when Jerry Lewis and I broke up, he said I wouldn't last two years in show business. Now what happens? He gets dropped by Paramount!"

It should be added that his ex-partner was quickly picked up by Columbia, which signed him for a new movie, "Three on a Couch."

When Martin and Lewis split nine years ago, the wise crowd figured Dean would suffer from the breach. They didn't figure on the resourcefulness of the former Steubenville, Ohio, welterweight boxer. He has proven fast on his feet.

He demonstrates that in his new film, "The Silencers," in which he plays undercover agent Matt Helm. It's reported that Dean has enough dolls in the spy spoof to make James Bond seem like a monk.

Why is he undertaking a full season of television when he obviously is prospering in films?

"Why not?" he countered. "All this talk about how tough television is. Baloney. You know how long it takes me to do an hour television show? Four hours. Yeah, I mean it: Four hours! That's actual working time.

"I go to the studio at one in the afternoon on Sunday and I'm home at eight in the evening. I knocked off a show like that last Sunday, right in the middle of this picture. And that morning I had myself a round of golf!"

The Martin method leaves preparation of the show up to TV creators who understand his style in music and comedy. By the time Dean arrives, the script and songs are set, he reviews them briefly, then does a run-through.

"When we started out, we did a dress rehearsal, then sat around for two hours before doing the show," he added. "I cut that out. The dress rehearsal was much better than the show, because it had that quality of spontaniety.

"We make a mistake now and then. Who wants a show that is perfect?"

Dean has no concern about the weekly exposure cutting into his movie draw.

"People who watch the TV show will see me singing and telling jokes. Since I don't tell jokes on the screen, they're seeing an entirely different Martin from what they get in theaters."

One thing is certain: Martin's way of life becomes him.

"Yeah, I don't look bad for a guy who's 48," he declared. "Tell you what does it: It's that young whisky. Some guys drink that old whisky. Not me."

"We tried to keep expenses down to a minimum and to 'compensate' for personal guests by personally contributing one-fourth of the total grocery bill. Regardless, it's quite a responsibility."

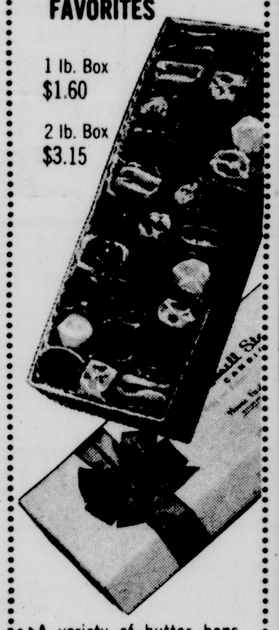

However, the First Lady is used to these, for she is responsible for everything in the Mansion. Among her more pleasurable duties are her obligations as hostess of the Mansion.

In addition to the teas, receptions and banquets over which she must preside, she has stacks of mail which she must answer each day and she is called upon to speak before various groups. Topics for the speeches are usually about life in the Mansion or women in politics. "It's much easier when you're given a topic," both women agreed.

However, there really isn't much time for speeches. No two days are alike while living in the Mansion, but all are hectic. A typical day's schedule, includes a 9 a.m. appointment, luncheon for guests at the Mansion, an afternoon tour of the Mansion and a formal dinner for 30 that evening. Mrs. Hearnes' interest in the Morning Music Club is sandwiched among her other activities--as is her piano which has found its place downstairs among antiques and momentos of previous administrations.

Mrs. Hearnes retains many of her clubs and activities although the demands on her time have increased. Music is her favorite pastime and she maintains her interest through her club work and church work, as director of the primary choir and soprano in the adult choir of the First Baptist Church, Jefferson City. She also teaches a Sunday School class of young married women and does volunteer work with the Missouri Mental Health Assn. Recently she visited Columbia to inspect its "Head Start" project.

The First Lady is a busy person. Demands on her time and patience are great. However, as the wife of the governor and as official hostess for Missouri, her personal life gives way to her political standing.

Dean Martin Sets Fast Pace, Fools Experts

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "And they call me lazy!" Dean Martin said with scorn.

The allegedly lazy singer-actor was breezing through his third film of this year and preparing to continue his string of television shows, which will total 30 in the coming season.

"Not bad for a lazy guy," he muttered.

He happened on a thought that seemed to give him pleasure. "You know," he said, "when Jerry Lewis and I broke up, he said I wouldn't last two years in show business. Now what happens? He gets dropped by Paramount!"

It should be added that his ex-partner was quickly picked up by Columbia, which signed him for a new movie, "Three on a Couch."

When Martin and Lewis split nine years ago, the wise crowd figured Dean would suffer from the breach. They didn't figure on the resourcefulness of the former Steubenville, Ohio, welterweight boxer. He has proven fast on his feet.

He demonstrates that in his new film, "The Silencers," in which he plays undercover agent Matt Helm. It's reported that Dean has enough dolls in the spy spoof to make James Bond seem like a monk.

Why is he undertaking a full season of television when he obviously is prospering in films?

"Why not?" he countered. "All this talk about how tough television is. Baloney. You know how long it takes me to do an hour television show? Four hours. Yeah, I mean it: Four hours! That's actual working time.

"I go to the studio at one in the afternoon on Sunday and I'm home at eight in the evening. I knocked off a show like that last Sunday, right in the middle of this picture. And that morning I had myself a round of golf!"

The Martin method leaves preparation of the show up to TV creators who understand his style in music and comedy. By the time Dean arrives, the script and songs are set, he reviews them briefly, then does a run-through.

"When we started out, we did a dress rehearsal, then sat around for two hours before doing the show," he added. "I cut that out. The dress rehearsal was much better than the show, because it had that quality of spontaniety.

"We make a mistake now and then. Who wants a show that is perfect?"

Dean has no concern about the weekly exposure cutting into his movie draw.

"People who watch the TV show will see me singing and telling jokes. Since I don't tell jokes on the screen, they're seeing an entirely different Martin from what they get in theaters."

One thing is certain: Martin's way of life becomes him.

"Yeah, I don't look bad for a guy who's 48," he declared. "Tell you what does it: It's that young whisky. Some guys drink that old whisky. Not me."

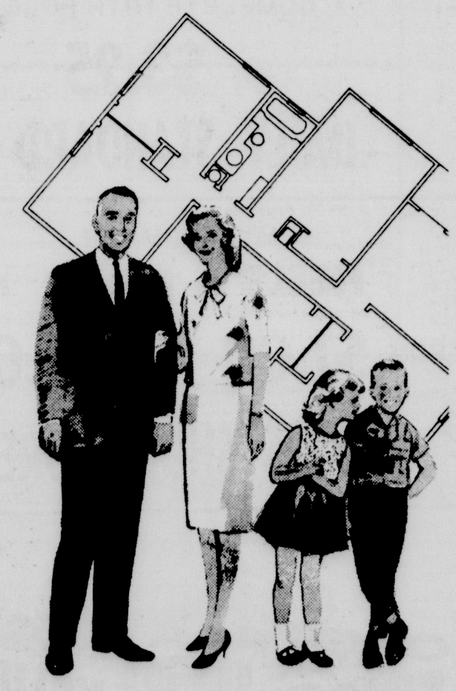

TAKES OVER—Mrs. Janice Robbins, of New York, has been appointed executive director of the Laymen's National Committee, Inc. Mrs. Robbins succeeds Mrs. Sara B. DeForeest, who is retiring after 25 years of service. The committee is an all-faiths, nonprofit organization which sponsors National Bible Week annually and conducts a year-round program to stimulate public interest and appreciation in the Bible.

State Highway Commission Approves 1966 Aerial Photography Program

The Missouri State Highway Commission has announced plans for the 1966 aerial photography program amounting to 57 projects and covering over 190 miles.

The approved program extends into 42 counties of the state and is the 8th year which the Department has flown aerial photographic and reconnaissance missions.

The Department flies all of its aerial missions during the winter months when the foliage is off the trees and most vegetation is at minimum growth.

The approved program for 1966 by district, county, route, mileage and location includes:

DISTRICT 10, SIKESTON

RIPLEY: Route 142(B) -- 5 miles from Doniphan to Route E.

WAYNE: Route H--7 miles from 34 west to Clearwater Lake.

World's most northern point of land is said to be Cape Morris K. Jesup on Greenland's northeastern extremity.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI

RESOLUTION

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of one and one-half inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on six inch soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on Illinois from Kentucky Rd. to Ables Rd. in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: SECTION 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. SECTION 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. SECTION 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $4.60 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. SECTION 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. SECTION 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. SECTION 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 2nd day of August, 1965. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

Skin diving scientists with cameras have recorded the existence of fish cleaning stations, which large fish visit to be picked clean of skin parasites by smaller fish and other animals in a process called cleaning symbiosis. The pressure-proof cameras must be equipped with powerful stroboscopic lights to film the color of fish since water filters out the color below a depth of 52 feet.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI

RESOLUTION

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of one and one-half inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on six inch soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on Illinois from Kentucky Rd. to Ables Rd. in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: SECTION 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. SECTION 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. SECTION 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $4.60 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. SECTION 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. SECTION 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. SECTION 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 2nd day of August, 1965. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

Union Membership Can't Be Forced

EDITORS NOTE — Will elimination of state laws banning the union shop force thousands of workers to join unions — even if the unions are allegedly corrupt or the workers have other ethical objections? Some Republicans in Congress have made this charge in fighting repeal of the federal law that now permits the states to bar union shops. Organized labor and Democratic supporters, halfway to victory with House approval of a bill no one can be forced to join a union to keep his job. Who is right?

WASHINGTON (AP)—If your employer negotiates a union shop labor contract, can the union legally force you to become a member to keep your job?

The answer appears to be no, although neither side in the current congressional fight over the issue has emphasized it.

This is true in the 31 states where the union shop is now legal, and would apply to all states if organized labor is successful in its drive to kill the 19 state laws that now ban the union shop.

It is true even though the Taft-Hartley Act says a union and employer can negotiate a contract requiring "membership" in the union as a condition of employment.

The current fight in Congress is over repeal of section 14B of Taft-Hartley, which now permits any state to ban the union shop. Nineteen states enacted such laws and many other states have been the scene of bitter battles over the issue.

Repeal of 14B, which already has passed the House and appears headed for passage in the Senate, would make union shop contracts legal in all states.

Opponents charge the union shops means "compulsory unionism."

But even though the federal law uses the word "membership," the National Labor Relations Board has ruled and been upheld by the courts that payment of dues and initiation fees is enough to satisfy the law.

This, in effect, is the "agency shop."

"Basically, all we get by repealing 14B is an agency shop," said a spokesman for the AFL-CIO.

The agency shop basically satisfies labor's argument against workers who take wage gains won by the union but refuse to join and help pay the costs of bargaining.

Under federal law, a union must bargain for all workers in a plant whether or not they are union members.

Under the agency shop, workers who oppose joining a union pay their way but don't have to join.

Under the union shop, they not only must pay the dues but have to join the union.

But the NLRB, in a 1949 case soon after Taft-Hartley was enacted, said: "The employe having offered to pay the dues and fees has done all that can be legally asked of him."

In other words, the union can accept or refuse the dues but cannot then demand the employe be fired for refusing to join.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago upheld the ruling and in 1951 the Supreme Court refused to review it, thus leaving the decision of the lower court standing.

The case involved three employes of Union Starch & Refining Co. in Granite City, Ill. They agreed to pay dues under a union shop contract but refused to attend a union meeting of take an oath of allegiance to the union.

The company fired them at the demand of the Grain Processors Independent Union but the NLRB ordered them reinstated.

The Court of Appeals, in agreeing with the board, said it was not the intent of Congress that anyone be fired for any reason except refusing to pay dues and initiation fees.

Presumably, this could be extended to require payment of any special assessments levied on all members of the union.

The ruling by the NLRB was a close one—a 3 to 2 vote, but subsequent board rulings have agreed with the majority decision and it has never been successfully challenged in court.

With the nationwide debate centering on the repeal of 14B, it is conceivable the issue could come up again and eventually find its way to the Supreme Court.

While labor spokesmen have made the point that no one would be forced to join a union if 14B is repealed, they have not stressed it.

Obviously, they would prefer that employes under a union shop contract become active members of the union—not just dues payers.

The Right to Work Committee and Republican allies fighting repeal haven't mentioned the point at all—drumming hard on the charge of forced union membership.

But under questioning, both sides generally agree.

Asked whether any worker could be forced into a union against his will, the AFL-CIO replied "Absolutely not."

Rep. Robert P. Griffin, Republican leader of the unsuccessful House fight against repeal, concedes the point but adds:

"I think it is a technical distinction without very much practical meaning. It just makes some people feel a little better."

Reed Larson, executive vice president of the Right to Work Committee, contends "It's an inconsequential point."

He cites the case of three workers who refused to join a union for religious reasons in Indiana after that state last January repealed its law banning the union shop.

Larson said the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists tried to force the three members of the Christadelphian sect to become union members under a union shop contract at the Arkla Air Condictioning Co. in Evansville.

The case was settled without a court fight when the three were permitted to pay the equivalent of union dues without joining the union.

Robert H. Brown, a Machinists official, said:

"The workers are completely satisfied with the way in which we responded to their beliefs and allowed them to remain on their jobs, and the way in which the union continues to secure gains and benefits for them."

One of the three men later joined the union, Brown said.

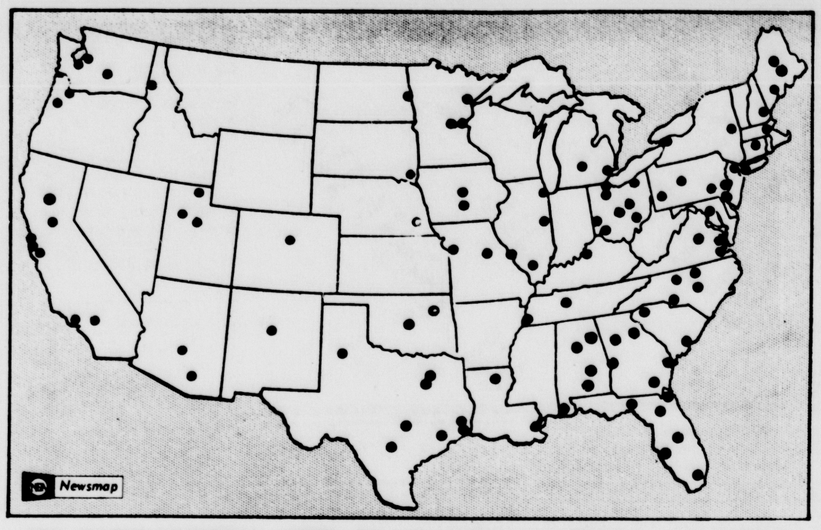

Commenting on the Evansville case, Frank C. McAlister of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce said the Christadelphians negotiated "their own little agency shop."

Of course I believe in luck. How otherwise to explain the success of the people you detest?

Cattle 1,000; calves 250; steers and heifers about steady in cleanup trade; cows steady; good and choice steers 19.00-25.50; standard and good heifers 18.00-23.00; cows 14.00-15.50; vealers about steady; good and choice vealers 18.00-25.00; good and choice calves 15.00-20.00.

Sheep 350; steady; choice and prime spring lambs 24.00-25.00; shorn ewes 4.00-7.00; choice and fancy feeder lambs 20.00-22.00.

My brother is a veterinarian, and part of his work involves an artificial insemination service. Not long ago he made a service call to a farm where a 12-year-old girl had been promised the resulting calf to raise herself.

This girl met him when he arrived and walked with him toward the barn, eying him suspiciously. Then suddenly she burst into tears and ran to the house. My brother, familiar with the unpredictability of 12-year-old girls, went on to the barn, "serviced" the waiting cow, and prepared to leave.

As he headed for his car, the girl's mother came out of the house convulsed in silent laughter.

"Do you know what that was all about?" she asked. "She's in there crying her eyes out because she doesn't want her calf to look like you!"

Union Membership Can't Be Forced

EDITORS NOTE — Will elimination of state laws banning the union shop force thousands of workers to join unions — even if the unions are allegedly corrupt or the workers have other ethical objections? Some Republicans in Congress have made this charge in fighting repeal of the federal law that now permits the states to bar union shops. Organized labor and Democratic supporters, halfway to victory with House approval of a bill no one can be forced to join a union to keep his job. Who is right?

WASHINGTON (AP)—If your employer negotiates a union shop labor contract, can the union legally force you to become a member to keep your job?

The answer appears to be no, although neither side in the current congressional fight over the issue has emphasized it.

This is true in the 31 states where the union shop is now legal, and would apply to all states if organized labor is successful in its drive to kill the 19 state laws that now ban the union shop.

It is true even though the Taft-Hartley Act says a union and employer can negotiate a contract requiring "membership" in the union as a condition of employment.

The current fight in Congress is over repeal of section 14B of Taft-Hartley, which now permits any state to ban the union shop. Nineteen states enacted such laws and many other states have been the scene of bitter battles over the issue.

Repeal of 14B, which already has passed the House and appears headed for passage in the Senate, would make union shop contracts legal in all states.

Opponents charge the union shops means "compulsory unionism."

But even though the federal law uses the word "membership," the National Labor Relations Board has ruled and been upheld by the courts that payment of dues and initiation fees is enough to satisfy the law.

This, in effect, is the "agency shop."

"Basically, all we get by repealing 14B is an agency shop," said a spokesman for the AFL-CIO.

The agency shop basically satisfies labor's argument against workers who take wage gains won by the union but refuse to join and help pay the costs of bargaining.

Under federal law, a union must bargain for all workers in a plant whether or not they are union members.

Under the agency shop, workers who oppose joining a union pay their way but don't have to join.

Under the union shop, they not only must pay the dues but have to join the union.

But the NLRB, in a 1949 case soon after Taft-Hartley was enacted, said: "The employe having offered to pay the dues and fees has done all that can be legally asked of him."

In other words, the union can accept or refuse the dues but cannot then demand the employe be fired for refusing to join.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago upheld the ruling and in 1951 the Supreme Court refused to review it, thus leaving the decision of the lower court standing.

The case involved three employes of Union Starch & Refining Co. in Granite City, Ill. They agreed to pay dues under a union shop contract but refused to attend a union meeting of take an oath of allegiance to the union.

The company fired them at the demand of the Grain Processors Independent Union but the NLRB ordered them reinstated.

The Court of Appeals, in agreeing with the board, said it was not the intent of Congress that anyone be fired for any reason except refusing to pay dues and initiation fees.

Presumably, this could be extended to require payment of any special assessments levied on all members of the union.

The ruling by the NLRB was a close one—a 3 to 2 vote, but subsequent board rulings have agreed with the majority decision and it has never been successfully challenged in court.

With the nationwide debate centering on the repeal of 14B, it is conceivable the issue could come up again and eventually find its way to the Supreme Court.

While labor spokesmen have made the point that no one would be forced to join a union if 14B is repealed, they have not stressed it.

Obviously, they would prefer that employes under a union shop contract become active members of the union—not just dues payers.

The Right to Work Committee and Republican allies fighting repeal haven't mentioned the point at all—drumming hard on the charge of forced union membership.

But under questioning, both sides generally agree.

Asked whether any worker could be forced into a union against his will, the AFL-CIO replied "Absolutely not."

Rep. Robert P. Griffin, Republican leader of the unsuccessful House fight against repeal, concedes the point but adds:

"I think it is a technical distinction without very much practical meaning. It just makes some people feel a little better."

Reed Larson, executive vice president of the Right to Work Committee, contends "It's an inconsequential point."

He cites the case of three workers who refused to join a union for religious reasons in Indiana after that state last January repealed its law banning the union shop.

Larson said the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists tried to force the three members of the Christadelphian sect to become union members under a union shop contract at the Arkla Air Conditioning Co. in Evansville.

The case was settled without a court fight when the three were permitted to pay the equivalent of union dues without joining the union.

Robert H. Brown, a Machinists official, said:

"The workers are completely satisfied with the way in which we responded to their beliefs and allowed them to remain on their jobs, and the way in which the union continues to secure gains and benefits for them."

One of the three men later joined the union, Brown said.

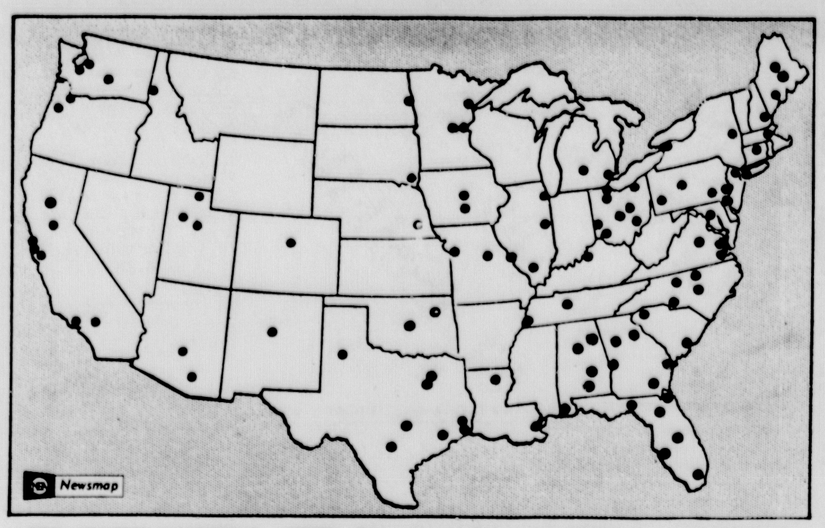

Commenting on the Evansville case, Frank C. McAlister of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce said the Christadelphians negotiated "their own little agency shop."

Of course I believe in luck. How otherwise to explain the success of the people you detest?

"Well, that's opening night on a showboat—but I never did think the critics would scuttle her, Cap'n!"

HERE IS A TAMED TIGER FOR RIDING ABOUT THE PLAY-ROOM! His plump body and not-so-ferocious head are easily sewn by following a detailed diagram. He's stuffed with an oversize bed pillow and is properly tiger-striped and be-whiskered with "BOILTEX" rick rack. Free instructions, including diagrams, are available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet PPE 1298.
